Vale budget approved – but local Tories are in disarray

VALE Council Leader John Thomas has been told his backbenchers will no longer tolerate being ignored after a "devastating defeat" over his budget.

Two weeks ago, the budget was voted down but last week it went through after the Vale Leader relied on Labour support.

The GEM understands there is serious discontent among Conservative backbenchers on the council over what party insiders say are "a number of PR blunders" such as proposed car parking charges, dog controls and the "closure" of Llancarfan Primary School.

It is also understood several Conservative councillors were "incensed at the perceived arrogance of doing a deal with Labour" last week to approve the budget rather than address concerns within the party, while some were concerned about the level of council tax increases in the budget.

Almost half the Conservative members on the authority – a total of 11 councillors – abstained from voting in favour of the budget on Friday, March 8.

The budget, which included a 4.9 per cent council tax rise, was passed after the Conservative leadership struck a deal with the Labour opposition.

Cllr Thomas has defended his administration's record and said he was confident he can agree a way forward with most of the councillors who voted against him. He said he sought a deal with Labour after a meeting with Conservatives colleagues last Wednesday when it became apparent he could not rely on the support of his whole party.

A source within the Vale of Glamorgan Conservatives said: "This was a devastating defeat for the cabinet, and it sends a strong message that the group will no longer tolerate being ignored on key policy decisions. How John Thomas reacts to the vote will dictate what happens next."

Young rugby players are off to Ja-

ABOVE: The rugby players are fundraising for their trip.

NINE talented year 12 and 13 Cowbridge Comprehensive boys have been selected to represent Wales in the Sanix Youth Rugby World Cup, in Japan in early May.

The boys need to raise part of the money to fund the trip and so have organised a car boot sale, to take place at Cowbridge Comprehensive School on Sunday, March 17 at 9am to 12.30pm.

Car booters can set up from 8.30am at £5 per car and traders are welcome to attend for a £10 fee. The boys will also be putting their muscles and strength to good use by washing cars for a donation.

Thanks go to Cowbridge Fire Service for allowing us to use their water hydrant, buckets and sponges for the occasion. The weather is scheduled to be dry and sunny so there's no excuse not to come along and support the event.

The boys have also organised a curry night to be held at Cowbridge Rugby Club on Friday, March 29 with a question and answer session with Cardiff Blues players (children welcome). For further information on either of these events call 07857 808492/07702 618981. RJ

'Increase in council tax is scandalous'

THE Vale Council want to load us up with yet another inflation busting council tax increase.

The leader of our council, Cllr John Thomas, says the proposed tax hike is relatively low. Is this man living in the real world?

I am like most council tax payers in that we are now paying more per month in council tax than we were paying for our mortgages, the difference being at the end of our mortgage, we have something to show for it.

For our monthly council tax outlay, however, we do have a number of things to show for it – we have free potholes on just about every road in the Vale. We have many of our street lights turned off at midnight, we have a Police and Crime Commissioner with an abundance of staff including two secretaries – an inevitable drain on the Vale Council's annual budget.

We managed our police force particularly well for over 100 years, so why do we have to pay out for this entity, plus his entourage of expensive staff?

We have limited amounts of waste we can legally leave for kerbside collection, which has resulted in increased litter louts and fly tipping incidents; the list goes on and on.

So a relatively low council tax increase is on the cards. If this latest exorbitant proposal of a 4.9 per cent increase goes ahead, it will mean we will have had more than a 32 per cent increase in six years in our council tax.

The Vale Council has over £75 million in reserve, yet continues to throw our money around like confetti for useless and unnecessary consultations on useless projects that never come to fruition and they then expect us to pay for it – it is totally scandalous.

Come on, Cllr Thomas, even Dick Turpin wore a mask.

Barrie V Evans, Coordinator, Barry First Group.

'Thanks to GEM correspondents'

WE would like to thank both Barrie V Evans and Anne Usher for their kind words in last week's 'Readers' Letters' in The GEM, following the announcement that Silver Star is closing down.

We have had a sensational response to our advertisement in The GEM with over 600 customers in the first two days of the sale. The store is open until Saturday, March 30 and we look forward to seeing many of our customers and friends in the next two weeks.

David and Terry Sylvester, Barry

'Memorial Hall left us in T.RExtasy!'

ON March 9, my mother and I attended the Memo Arts Centre to watch T.Rextasy.

The set up was perfect with cabaret seating and a large space in front of the stage to dance (and of course, we did!). There were plenty of bar staff to ensure we were well-hydrated.

I just wanted to publicly thank the team at the Memo for securing the band as we have seen them before and they are fantastic! Here's to many more evenings at our arts centre.

Lois Banks, Barry.

Why publicising your event in The GEM is a good choice!

Ward councillors with the group.

I would like to thank The GEM for advertising Highlight Park Community Neighbourhood Watch's recent event in the paper.

I am so very grateful for your support and thought you might like to know it was a great success.

The Mayor came and opened the session with a brief explanation of how we were able to start up the project and why. Both our Dyfan ward councillors, and the police, came to support us.

There was a very happy and friendly reception from everyone who was there. They mixed well and the atmosphere in the room was buzzing as they all chatted to each other at their tables. A raffle was held too.

Slightly more than 55 people attended so I feel we have fulfilled an important social role in our area and look forward to our next sessions.

The event left the Neighbourhood Watch coordinators feeling exhilarated and very pleased with the response, and on behalf of all who attended I would also like to thank them for giving up their time for this project too.

Once again, thank you so much for providing us with your valuable space in the newspaper in order to help our community.

Ada Flinn, group co-ordinator Highlight Park Community Neighbourhood Watch.

Editor's note: We're happy to be of service to the community Ada! If you want to let us know about events taking place in your area then email editorial@glamorgan-gem.co.uk.

Feedback sought on dementia friendly Barry and the Vale

I AM chairperson of the Dementia Friendly Barry Steering Group, one of a number of groups based in towns in the Vale that aim to promote organisations, businesses, libraries, banks and leisure centres to be more inclusive when providing services for people living with dementia and their carers.

To help us achieve this, it would be very useful to have feedback from the public by answering nine basic questions, which will take approximately three minutes.

The answers will be used to campaign and raise awareness of the concerns raised in the questionnaire.

You don't have to be a carer or living with dementia to answer these questions. Find the questionnaire link on the Dementia Friendly Vale website page at www.dementiafriendlyvale.co.uk/dementia-vale-activities-support. There is also a link on Twitter @dementia_vale.

Jane Weldon, chairman, Dementia Friendly Barry Steering Group.

Fields in Trust – why the difference?

IT was ironic that, in last week's edition of The GEM, as well as printing my letter you reported on three open spaces in Llantwit Major which have received Fields in Trust status over the last six years; whereas the Cowbridge Physic Garden has been denied this protection.

Perhaps the Llantwit councillors are more in tune with their communities than those who represent Cowbridge.

Catherine Clay, Cowbridge.

Pupils enjoyed their snow day at Ysgol Y Bont Faen.

Winter wonderland at Y Bont Faen

WHAT a surprise to open the curtains and see nothing but white as snow fell in Cowbridge on January 31!

Some children were a little sad when they had to go to school, but actually it turned into a really fun day as the whole school took to the playing fields to build snowmen and make snow angels

Y Bont Faen are working towards their Cymraeg Campus bronze award, which is part of the charter specifically created to develop Welsh in English medium schools.

On February 14, children from Y Bont Faen Primary School visited Iolo Morganwg Primary School to take part in Welsh language activities across a number of subjects.

Year 5 went to the shared multi-sports area where children from Iolo taught lots of different words in Welsh, such as 'pass' and 'throw'. Year 6 children took part in reading and speaking activities.

Year 3 children from Iolo then visited Y Bont Faen to learn coding from the school's digital leaders.

We are looking forward to our next Cymraeg Campus challenge!

Ystradowen WI learn about Atlantic College

THE speaker at the March meeting was Laura Jenkins, the granddaughter of one of Ystradowen WI's members.

Laura is a teacher and house-mother at Atlantic College, one of the United World Colleges (UWC).

The college, founded in 1962, caters for all cultures and languages and Laura brought along four students who in turn talked about their experiences and the advantages of learning with such a diverse international group of students, and how unlikely friendships are quickly formed.

The talk was extremely well presented and gave everyone an understanding of Atlantic College.

Following the talk, the usual business matters were discussed with forthcoming social events, including the eagerly awaited outing to see Calendar Girls. Dates were also set for the monthly walks and coffee mornings.

Our next meeting is on April 3 and everyone is most welcome to join the group. They meet on the first Wednesday each month in Ystradowen village hall at 7.30pm.

Tory 'revolt' as budget is finally passed by the Vale Council

The source added: "The group wants significant change and they were furious that he went to Labour for a budget deal instead of sorting things out face to face within the group."

The budget was passed at an extraordinary meeting of the council last week after the Conservative administration's original proposals were voted down by four of its own councillors along with Labour and Plaid Cymru the week before.

The four councillors who originally voted against the budget – Vincent Bailey, George Carroll, Janice Charles and former Welsh Conservative leader Andrew RT Davies – were swelled in their ranks, with as many as 11 Conservatives abstaining on voting for the amended budget.

A statement on behalf of the four councillors said: "As councillors, our duties first and foremost are to our constituents – and we simply weren't satisfied that council tax payers were getting value for money out of the proposed increase.

"We had concerns about a range of issues including council tax, car parking and the closure of Llancarfan School and that's why we took the difficult decision to oppose the budget, meaning that it did not pass.

"In the discussions that followed, further measures were agreed, including extra funding for the 95A/B bus services, while proposed on street car parking charges in the Vale were scrapped.

"We welcome these changes, which will bring huge benefits to our communities, but our concerns over other issues, including council tax levels, remained.

"We therefore decided to abstain when the revised proposals were brought before full council and were joined in doing so by a large number of colleagues."

Cllr Gordon Kemp, cabinet member for social care, health and leisure, voted for the budget in the first meeting on February 27. He abstained on voting for the Labour-amended budget, before supporting the council tax rise in a separate vote once the budget had been agreed.

He said: "I was not happy that what we were voting for was not a wholly-Conservative budget. It was being influenced by Labour. When it came to vote on the council tax I supported it. It's never pleasant having to raise council tax, but we are where we are. We're not a well-funded authority so we have to cut our cloth accordingly.

"(The vote) shows that there has to be engagement with the Conservative group. Whether there could have been more of that, I don't know."

Labour say they're confident proposals which would have seen on-street parking brought to towns in the Vale have been dropped following talks with council leader John Thomas. They also negotiated an additional £100,000 to protect the 95A and B and X91 bus services and funding for a community project at St Paul's Church in Penarth. Labour also demanded a fund to refurbish Victorian schools throughout the Vale in return for their support for the budget, along with a review of LED replacements of non-standard lights in Penarth.

Cllr Neil Moore, Labour Leader in the Vale, said the Conservatives are in "total disarray".

He said: "It's absurd what's happening with them. They seem to have absolutely no control or discipline within the group. Clearly they can't talk to each other because that wouldn't happen in our group. What I found disgraceful was that some don't realise as a councillor we have a responsibility to set a legal budget. To me it seems like half the group don't care about that responsibility. There's too much politics going on.

"They are in total disarray. How long it will last, I don't know."

Plaid Cymru, which voted against the budget, said it was "anti-democratic and non-transparent" for the councillors to abstain from the vote without explaining why in the council chamber.

Cllr Ian Johnson, Plaid Cymru Leader on the Vale Council, said: "Plaid Cymru voted against the budget because the council tax was too high on residents, many of whom are already struggling with price increases.

"It was no surprise to watch Labour propping up the Conservative budget. They regularly vote together on important issues – including voting for the Barry Docks incinerator and for the 10,000 house Local Development Plan. There is little difference between them locally.

"It was disappointing that councillors were abstaining without explaining their decisions. That is anti-democratic and non-transparent. If they were proud of their actions, they would stand up and explain them in the chamber."

Cllr Thomas said he had a "grown up conversation" with Labour to get the budget through after it became apparent he could not rely on the support of his whole party in the meeting last Wednesday.

He said concerns over council tax had never been mentioned in the group meeting.

"To think you can carry on providing the services that people want with ever reducing settlements from Welsh Government without putting council tax up is just naive," he said.

Cllr Thomas said it was "a bit strong" to call the administration's decisions "PR blunders," and said the council has to make tough decisions and "it's not always possible to make good PR out of those".

He said: "We have group meetings on decisions. There's usually a difference of opinion and not everyone will get their own way. That's the nature of the game. It would have been irresponsible to go to that meeting without being sure we could get the budget through.

"We have consistently been the best performing council in Wales. That's alongside reductions in funding and some of the lowest council tax increases over the last few years as well.

"I hope we can all pull together and get behind the administration. It's not ideal the way things have panned out. Hopefully, we will have group discussions and get back on track. I'm sure for most of the councillors who voted against me, we will come to an agreement on a way forward.

"All I've ever wanted to do is the best I can for the council and residents in the Vale and I stand behind that."

Matt Discombe, local democracy reporter.

Applications for Rural Community Fund now open

RURAL community projects in the Vale could be eligible to receive grants of up to £5,000 from home energy provider Calor.

The Calor Rural Community Fund – now in its third year – aims to reward deserving community projects with prize pots ranging from £1,000 to £5,000. This year's scheme is bigger and better than ever before, with Calor giving away 21 grants totalling a staggering £70,000. The number of £5,000 donations has also been doubled from last year, with a total of 10 up for grabs.

Rural communities off the mains gas grid can submit their projects for funding, with previous winners including playground and village hall refurbishments, instruments for music banks and equipment for sports clubs. Now, Calor is encouraging anyone who thinks their project may be eligible to come forward and submit an application for consideration to this year's fund.

The projects that receive the most votes by the public will be shortlisted and then reviewed by a panel of judges, who will select the final 21 winners. Partnering with Crowdfunder for 2019, Calor also is pledging £2,000 worth of match funding to approved entries that use the fundraising platform to raise donations for their community project.

Jason Nuttall, head of funding for Crowdfunder, said: "We're really excited to be partnering with the Calor Rural Community Fund. The match funding will give so many projects that extra boost toward meeting their goals and it's great to be a part of a scheme that is making such a difference to so many rural communities across the UK."

To find out how you can take part, visit www.calor.co.uk/communityfund.

Pancake day at Mothers' Union

THIS month's meeting of Colwinston, Llandow and Llysworney Mothers' Union was on Shrove Tuesday and it was held in a member's home in Colwinston.

Penny Snowden, our parish lay reader, led us in a short service; then Kath Jones cooked pancakes for us all to enjoy.

After a game of unusual Pass the Parcel combined with quiz questions, Dilys Newman, a member for over 30 years was presented with a card and an orchid to celebrate her 90th birthday this week.

The new programme for the year ahead was distributed and the next meeting will be in Llandow village hall at 7.30pm on April 2. This will take the form of a Lent Reflection.

WI learn about secret heroes of the space race

ON March 7, St Nicholas WI president Janet Hayes welcomed members to a cinema evening, and the film shown was Hidden Figures about three remarkable black women who worked for the NASA space agency in the early 1960s.

The story was about how these mathematical geniuses helped NASA put the first men in space in a time of segregation, and the hardship they overcame not just being black, but also women.

The members enjoyed popcorn and ice cream, the raffle was won by Wendy Lowe and the monthly competition by Lis Fearson.

Thank you Rosemary and Viv, for organising an enjoyable evening and thanks to Paul Fisher for setting up the equipment for the film.

At the meeting on Thursday, April 4, we will welcome Clare Revera who will give us a demonstration on basket weaving. New members welcome, meeting starts at 7pm in the Reading room, Bonvilston.

A unique museum - and it is here in the Vale

Hunter Tornado Phantom.

Jet Provost.

COLLECTING things is a bit of, well, a male occupation, writes ANDY JOHNSTONE.

Be it duelling scars (admittedly not so common these days), loco numbers, or stamps, it is us chaps who tend to collect.

Take Gary Spoors and John Sparks, for example.

Long careers in the Royal Air Force and Royal Navy, and successful second careers with the businesses GJD Services and Horizon Aircraft at the Aerospace Wales Business Park, Picketston and at other sites in the UK have allowed them to indulge in their collective collecting speciality: aircraft.

"I like VC10s," said Mr Spoors, whose father was based at RAF St Athan, as was he some years later, "I have three of them."

A moment of silence ensued as I mentally counted my collecting haul (10 copies of Three Men in a Boat, nine of The Art of War, and six copies of Out of Africa.

Aircraft tend to be rather large. In fact, even a WWII-era Spit or Hurri is considerably larger than one might assume. It is the "small. far away" effect.

Forward a generation to a Cold War Phantom or Tornado, and they are large aircraft, and so having space, say a couple of hangars here and there, is not only practical, but also a necessity.

Not everyone can own their own aircraft, let alone a squadron of myriad types both military and civil, fixed and rotary winged, airliner and fighter, and so Messrs Sparks and Spoors decided to create an aero museum, here, in the Vale, in St Athan, and it will be unlike anything else in Wales or the UK.

Their combined enthusiasm is palpable, infectious.

"It won't just be a museum," begins Mr Spoors, "but also a place to learn, to study, to have the kind of hands-on practical training in aircraft engineering and maintenance that is in short supply these days."

As if on cue, two young students - Danny Banga and Morgan Nicholls - of the University of South Wales arrive.

Both reading Aircraft Maintenance and Engineering, they travel to GJD Services' Hangar 872 when they can to get their hands dirty, to get to grips with, in a literal sense, the nuts and bolts of aircraft.

Mr Nicholls, who had his head in the exhaust outlet of a Jet Provost when we met, said: "Coming here gives us the sort of experience we can't get anywhere else.

Mr Banga agreed saying: "It backs up and brings to life the theoretical side of our studies, and we're so pleased we can come here to do it."

South Wales Air Museum (SWAM) is due to open over the Easter weekend.

"It's a work in progress," said Mr Sparks, "and probably always will be.

"We have so many plans, so many aircraft [I am sworn to secrecy about one], such a vision for this place."

Mr Sparks has another business – Horizon Aircraft Services, which specialises in restoring and flying ex-military jet and piston aircraft along with a flying school teaching people how to fly – on the airfield.

While collecting might be a peculiarly male preserve, SWAM will be anything but.

"What we will achieve here meshes perfectly with the renewed interest - for males AND females of any age - in STEM (science, technology, engineering, and mathematics, from primary-age children to college and university, and apprenticeships of all ages," said Mr Spoors.

Perhaps echoing Ignatius of Loyola, he continued, saying: "If we – working with schools, working with UK and Wales governments, working with industry, colleges and universities –-can get a child, be it a boy or a girl, interested in aircraft and engineering at 10 years old, then they'll want to do it for life.

"Even if it's only one or two children out of each class of 30 that gets that spark, then the tradition and excellence of world-leading engineering and science in the UK - including right here in the Vale and Bridgend - which has never gone away, is assured."

To use a couple of modish terms, the inclusivity envisioned at SWAM does not begin and end with gender.

"We're going to go above and beyond what is required to make sure disabled adults and children can have the same experience as everyone else," said Mr Sparks.

He described the plan to have a Boeing 747 cockpit, cut from the aircraft, put on the ground with a ramp onto the flight deck so that a wheelchair user or less-ambulant person can still access the controls. An elevating platform beneath will be able to raise a person in a wheelchair into the flight deck to give them the same hands-on experience.

Other exhibits - in addition to the Jet Provost - include a two-seater Hawker Hunter, a couple of Fairey Gannets, a Sea King, a de Havilland Dove, a Vampire, the famous Panavia Tornado GR1 ZA326 in "raspberry ripple" colour scheme, and Black Mike.

Black Mike ("She should be painted in grey," said Mr Spoors) is a record-breaking Phantom XV582.

Her claim to fame is that, 30 years ago this April 1, she set the fastest time for the 590-mile Lands End to John O'Groats Run, which she covered 46 minutes and 44 seconds.

That is an average speed of over 757 mph, and a record she still holds.

Future additions to the SWAM collection will include a Canberra, a Meteor, a Shackleton, a Buccaneer, a Venom, a Jaguar, and one of those VC10s, and lots, lots more.

"We might also like to get a Vulcan here," said Mr Sparks.

The museum, over time, will add a shop and a cafe, and visitors will be able to get up close to all the exhibits, and view them from above from a gallery.

Vale villagers are shocked at six-week road closure

LOCAL residents are up in arms after the Vale Council announced that the access road from the A48 to their village would be closed for six weeks.

The road closure is due to start on April 1, and villagers at Peterston-super-Ely were shocked at the news, and recently held a meeting with Vale MP Alun Cairns, housing developer Acorn, the road-works contractor Walters and County Councillor Michael Morgan.

The closure will be in place to widen the road at Sycamore Cross, improving access to the new housing development. However, locals are challenging the Vale Council on why the road is needed at all and argue that the community has not been consulted.

There is already an action group in the village, Vale Communities for Future Generations (VCFFG), which was set up to oppose plans for a new road link from the M4 to the A48 through the Ely Valley.

The group is equally angry about this new plan.

Local resident Gareth Hardman raised the matter with Mr Cairns. Mr Hardman said, "The impact of a six-week total road closure at Sycamore Cross, of what is a vital road route to and from Peterston-super-Ely and the wider area, is causing real anger in the community.

"Concerns have been raised over the inevitable road chaos this will lead to, over the delays in getting students to school, over real fears about access by emergency services.

"The Vale Council has failed to explain why a wholly disproportionate road improvement is needed to service the needs of a relatively small new housing development. We are calling for an urgent review before this road closure starts on April 1 - with all the inevitable chaos this will create."

A resident who is also a GP commented, "It will impact on us getting to work, getting to housebound patients and also on patients getting to us. Ambulance calls get allocated on the closest available crew, so there is potential impact on ambulance times. The traffic at Cowbridge cross roads coming from the comp already gets tailbacks. Diverting traffic through Welsh St Donats will make that significantly worse."

Much has also been made about the impact on pupils at the local primary school.

One school employee commented, "This road closure will have a huge impact on local traffic. There are over 30 staff/parents using this road just to get to Peterston primary school. The surrounding lanes will be heavily congested. I live in Barry and work at the school and have had to contend with the Five Mile Lane being closed for 12 weeks, which has not been easy."

Alun Cairns said, "I recognise that that residents want answers from the council on why this work is necessary. Any work that is taking place clearly needs to happen in a way that ensures that disruption is kept to an absolute minimum. I want to thank everyone who attended the meeting, including Acorn and Walters who were really helpful."

The VCFFG action group, however, suspect that the new road may be linked to the proposed M4 to A48 link road. A spokeswoman described it as "entirely disproportionate to the needs of the development and in excess of that requested by the developers in their original planning request."

A Vale Council spokesman said: "These road improvements will help reduce congestion and the existing passing problems experienced by traffic along this narrow section of road.

"Due to the narrow width of the existing road, a road closure is required to ensure the safety of both the public and those undertaking the work. Every effort will be made to keep the length of this closure to an absolute minimum to reduce inconvenience and disruption.

"Following the road closure period, the construction works will continue with traffic management in place to maintain the existing single lane 'give/take' passing arrangements for a further 20 weeks.

"The right hand turn lane from the westbound carriage way of the A48 at Sycamore Cross will also be temporarily affected.

"Traffic diversions will be in place throughout.

"The start date of the closure is being coordinated to begin only after the nearby the Five Mile Lane has reopened fully. This is currently expected to be early in April."

Local school unites with Dementia Friendly group

OVER the past few months, Cowbridge Comprehensive School has strengthened links with the local Dementia Friendly Cowbridge (DFC) committee.

On November 15, four pupils attended a DFC committee meeting. Here, the pupils explored the best way to contribute. Recently, Cowbridge Comprehensive School has taken the next step and signed up to be a Dementia Business Friend.

This commits the school community to making a positive difference in supporting dementia friendly awareness, practices and projects in respect of local residents living with dementia.

To mark this new link, Cowbridge Comprehensive School were presented with a Dementia Friendly mat on March 7. The mat has been given pride of place in the school's reception area.

The presentation was attended by Steven Blackman (chair of DFC) and Rev Heather Weddell along with all student committee members, Mr Ling and Mrs Taylor John. As a school, we are very grateful and honoured to be able to display that we are dementia friendly.

To date Cowbridge Comprehensive, students have held a Christmas concert which welcomed people with dementia in the community.

The concert incorporated carol singing due to research carried out by deputy head girl, Emily Jenkins, who discovered that actively participating in music boosts neurological functioning in patients with dementia.

It was a pleasure to be involved and was enjoyed by all.

Cowbridge students are currently organising PSE dementia awareness sessions and a logo competition to further contribute to DFC.

Students who are part of the DFC school committee include: Emily Jenkins, Maya Williams, Eve Bird, Megan Austin, Daniel Baxter, Layla Cotterell, Sophie Hawkins and Grace Marshall.

Report by Grace Marshall.

'Campaign continues to receive overwhelming support for old school site'

THE campaign against Hafod Housing's plans for the old sixth form site on Aberthin Road continues to attract overwhelming support and gather momentum.

The petition of objection against the development was submitted to the Vale Council's planning department on March 5, at which point it had been signed by 2,274 residents, workers and visitors to Cowbridge.

The petition was focused on four key areas: the number of units being proposed, which was far higher than the number allocated within the council's own Local Development Plan (LDP); the scale and character of the proposed buildings; the inadequate parking provision, and the complete destruction of the historic building, along with a mature yew tree.

As reported in the most recent Town Council update, the building has been recommended for County Treasure status (a view supported by the Town Council and Cowbridge History Society) and the yew tree for a Tree Protection Order.

However, at the time of writing, it is reported that a decision has not been made on the outcome of either of these recommendations.

A public meeting is being organised for later this month when a full update on the planning application will be given, alongside the opportunity for residents to voice their views and learn more about the campaign. The petition remains open so those who have not yet signed but wish to do so can sign at the public meeting or sign online by searching 'Aberthin' on Change.org.

Join the Parkrun fun!

THIS weekend is the 200th Barry Island Parkrun, which as a keen runner I am really looking forward to.

I remember when the Barry Island Parkrun was first set up back in 2015, and I was pleased to work with the organisers on the proposed route for the run. Almost four years later, I'm continually impressed with the fantastic crowds it attracts, with runners of all abilities welcome to take part.

I'd like to pay tribute to the brilliant and dedicated Parkrun organisers we have in Barry, who have worked hard to make a huge success of it and keep it fun for everyone. Last year, we had the first 'Gavin and Stacey' Parkrun, which saw Barry join forces with runners all the way from Billericay – including the Mayor of Basildon!

Hundreds took part that day and I'm really pleased that our Parkrun provided another platform to attract new people to Barry Island, showing off our fantastic beaches, beautiful promenade and fun activities for all ages.

In the Vale, we're fortunate to have a number of excellent running groups, such as the Major Milers in Llantwit Major and Seriously Mad Runners in Barry and the Parkrun provides a great platform for their members to complete a 5k run with other running enthusiasts.

Welsh Secretary
ALUN CAIRNS
reports to GEM readers

The run will also help with my training ahead of the London Marathon, which I am running at the end of April. My Marathon Fundraising Campaign has been officially launched today and you can find details on my website and social media about how to donate to my two charities, the Dementia Revolution and Guide Dogs.

So this weekend, whether you run regularly or have never tried before, I'd love to see you get involved at the 200th Barry Island Parkrun. It is great fun and a good way to keep fit and healthy. I look forward to seeing a big crowd on Saturday!

Opportunity knocks for a young star to shine!

YOUNG musical performers in the Vale can apply to take part in a talent show at St Cyres School with the winner going on to perform at GlastonBARRY Juniors' 6,000 capacity 'Big Top' in Romilly Park.

Bro Radio has teamed up with Mack Events to find that special youngster. 'A search for a star' is looking for talented local school children aged seven to 11. They will take part in auditions and a shortlist of performers will take to the stage at a final on Saturday, June 22 at St Cyres School, Penarth.

The winner will open GlastonBARRY Juniors, a family festival with tributes to Rihanna, Little Mix and Ed Sheeran, which takes place at Romilly Park, Barry on Friday, July 26. Entries have to be submitted by teachers in the Vale and competitors have to have the permission of parents or guardians.

Applications can be made online at broradio.fm/onair/search-for-a-star.

Care sector faces a 'crisis in recruitment'

INCREASING the pay of social care workers in the Vale is vital to help solve the recruitment crisis in the sector, the chair of Care Forum Wales has said.

The plea from Mario Kreft comes after a campaign was launched to attract another 20,000 social care workers in Wales over the next 10 years.

Mr Kreft said the problem was that the funding formulas of local councils and health boards were predicated on paying low wages to staff and that must change.

He has welcomed the 'WeCare.Wales' campaign which was unveiled by Social Care Wales and other care sector organisations, but warned more money was needed to provide "decent wages".

The number of elderly people over the age of 80 is predicted to increase by 44 per cent in Wales by 2030. There are around 113,000 people in the social care sector, but more are needed to cope with increasing need.

Mr Kreft said a proposed social care tax would not provide the complete answer. He said: "We are aware that some care workers in the Vale and Bridgend, like other areas in Wales, are low paid. To its great credit, Welsh Government has recently recognised social care as one of the four foundations of the economy, one which pumps £2.2 billion per year into the Welsh economy.

"Social care workers in Wales deserve a better deal. The deal they've got is not good enough to sustain the numbers that we're going to need in the future.

"Local authorities and health boards in Wales actually predicate that more than half of the staff in a care home are on the National Living Wage. When you get a qualified highly-skilled care practitioner, they have to be able to sustain a standard of living commensurate with the level of responsibility they have. These are people who have been overlooked."

Sue Evans, the chief executive of Social Care Wales, said: "In Wales, around 90,000 people work in social care, while 23,000 work in early years and childcare. However, we still need more people if we are going to meet the needs and expectations of society over the next 10 years.

"The 'WeCare' campaign has been developed to attract the right people to support some of the most vulnerable members in our communities or help inspire the next generation."

A spokesman for the Vale Council said it had recently agreed a pay increase for staff across the board with the lowest paid workers in particular benefiting.

He said: "From April, they will earn a minimum rate of £9.18 per hour. The new level is higher than the national minimum rate and also exceeds the independently-set Foundation Living Wage.

"We recognise that our greatest asset is our workforce. Our pay is competitive and in many cases staff rise through pay salary bands during early years of service.

"Staff also benefit from the opportunity to join the local government pension scheme, extensive development opportunities and our employee assistance programme which offers emotional and practical support for issues at work and at home.

"From April, they will earn a minimum rate of £9.18 per hour, with hourly wages increasing by £1.28. The new level is £1.35 higher than the national minimum rate and also exceeds the Foundation Living Wage.

A Welsh Government spokeswoman said it was committed to raising the status and profile of social care so it was seen as a positive career choice.

She said: "We have already taken steps to support the sustainability of the workforce. We recognise pressures the sector faces in Wales and are providing an additional £50 million in 2019-20 to help meet the growing demand for care and support services, £30 million of which will focus on workforce pressures and the wider sustainability of services."

Celebrating International Women's Day with Atal y Fro

ATAL y Fro were welcomed to Barry Town Council by Mayor Cllr Janice Charles and Jane Hutt AM on International Women's Day recently.

Ms Hutt said: "On a day of activities throughout the world to mark International Women's Day, it was great to join the event at the Mayor's Parlour welcoming Atal y Fro and recommitting ourselves to tackle the ongoing scourge of violence against women.

"We were encouraged to name the women who inspired us and the late Ursula Masson, the founder of the Welsh Women's Archive, who I honoured at a ceremony in Merthyr Tydfil later in the day was my name for IWD."

Charity launches appeal for nurses to get ready for the next generation

TŶ Hafan, the children's hospice in Wales, is appealing to supporters to help its nurses get ready for the next generation and expand their care beyond the hospice walls and into the homes of life-limited children.

Over the past 20 years, nursing has changed significantly. Since its opening in 1999, Tŷ Hafan has supported more than 800 children, and every year more children are admitted to the Sully-based hospice for comfort and care. With developments in technology and medicine, children are living longer which means that their needs have become increasingly complex.

Tŷ Hafan's Head of Hospice Care, Hayley Humphries, who has worked with Tŷ Hafan for most of her nursing career for 14 years, said: "We respond to the needs of each and every Tŷ Hafan child so our clinical care has had to evolve considerably.

"Our highly-trained nurses have introduced new clinical procedures and our symptom control and management techniques have become more specialised. Our hospice is now open 24/7, 365 days a year, enabling us to be ready for whenever the children need us.

"At the beginning of this year, we introduced our first-ever children's palliative care community nurse in Powys and, in the next 20 years, our ultimate aim is to have a Tŷ Hafan community nurse based in every Welsh health board, joining forces with the existing health services to provide pain management, family support and end of life care in a home setting.

"It costs over £1.1 million every year to train and fund our nurses, both community and hospice based. That's why we're launching this appeal and asking community, corporate and individual supporters to do anything they can to raise funds to help our nurses support even more children across Wales, not only in the hospice but also in the safe and familiar comfort of their own homes. There will be more families who need us, and we need to be ready for them".

Parents with first hand experience of Tŷ Hafan's nursing care know just how much it means to them, when faced with their darkest moments.

Osian Liddell from Barry has been visiting Tŷ Hafan for short breaks ever since he was born nearly four years ago. His mother, Anna, recalled how she felt the first time she visited the hospice and handed her tiny baby over to the Tŷ Hafan nurses.

"We just felt massive relief and for the first time in Oshi's young life, we felt calm," she said.

"We were with people who could help us and if something happened, they'd know what to do. Osian was safe. Those nurses are a replacement 'me'. As well as medication, they give cuddles and love, which is just what Oshi needs."

To help Tŷ Hafan raise funds for its nurses and to make a meaningful difference to life-limited children in Wales, visit www.tyhafan.org/nurses/.

New divisional commander for Bridgend and the Vale announced

CHIEF Superintendent Alun Morgan has been appointed as the new Divisional Commander for Bridgend and the Vale of Glamorgan.

It is a proud moment for the 52-year-old as he approaches 30 years of service with South Wales Police. During his career, he has worked in all four divisional areas of the force as well as with specialist units at Force Headquarters in Bridgend.

He has considerable experience of policing at both operational and support levels since starting as a Police Constable in Cockett, Swansea, through to more recent duties as Superintendent (Operations) in Bridgend and the Vale.

Chief Supt Morgan is a trained hostage and crisis negotiator and has been so for almost half his service.

Mr Morgan said: "I am truly humbled to become the Divisional Commander for Bridgend and the Vale of Glamorgan. It is a real honour to lead the police officers and staff members who do remarkable things day in, day out to keep our communities safe.

"I have a fantastic team around me with key support from Superintendent Claire Evans and I want to build upon the excellent work of my predecessor, Chief Supt Stuart Parfitt, to continue to address the concerns of residents in our communities and take positive action to tackle any issues successfully.

"Keeping the area safe remains our priority – which means making it as hostile a place as possible for those with a view to the contrary. We are here to keep our neighbourhoods safe and we will aim to do that by working in partnership with all those who share that vision." CT

Vale pupils are left inspired on International Women's Day

LOCAL schoolgirls shared their dreams of running a scaffolding business and becoming an Olympic gymnast with successful Barry businesswomen on International Women's Day.

The get-together was organised by Belinda Loveluck-Edwards, Labour's prospective Parliamentary candidate for the Vale.

Pupils from High Street Primary School met the businesswomen to hear their personal stories and be inspired by them.

Mrs Loveluck-Edwards explained: "I believe we all want to see girls across the Vale being given every opportunity to succeed. We need to inspire them. The theme of International Women's Day was 'balance for better'. It was a reminder that women are still not fully represented in business and we still need to press for change.

"The businesswomen opened the eyes of the girls to a world of possibilities and we are now looking forward to building a wider event across the Vale next year."

The pupils – Ffion Vowels, Molly Kelly, Ruby Barnfield-Lake and Seren Wroblewski – met Angharad Mollooly and Lois Nolan, who own the 'Annie and Lolo' store and they were joined by the founder of the GoodWash Company, Mandy Powell, and Penny Mickelson, a tennis ambassador for south Wales.

To mark International Women's Day Annie and Lolo had launched a hygiene bank for women in need.

The girls also spoke to Alice Harding of O'Shea's on Barry Island, who organised a free dinner at Christmas for local vulnerable people and the new chair of High Street traders, Vicky McDonald.

Fay Blakely of Homemade Wales also spent time with the pupils and said: "We talked about being a woman running your own business, what that entails, how much hard work it is – but how rewarding it is.

"We talked about the importance of being happy and doing something you enjoy. The girls who visited all have great ambitions for the future and I'm in no doubt they'll achieve them."

The youngsters ended their day with a visit to Giggles store on High Street, Barry.

False start to Spring is confusing the bees

News from the Fonmon Apiary with Harold Williams

IS spring really here? Last month was very convincing and the bees thought so too. However, a complete reversal of the weather has curtailed eternal activity; but not stopped it altogether.

Examining the debris in the underfloor trays is revealing an increase in varroa mite numbers and this is an indication that the queens are stepping up their egg production – and the varroa will take advantage of this situation.

Here at the apiary, I have two colonies of bees that have been overwintered, each in their own nucleus box.

What is a 'nucleus box'? It is a smaller version of a beehive: a full size version holds 11 frames whereas the nucleus only has five frames in it. These 'nuc' boxes are made from expanded polystyrene; the full size hives are made of wood.

The insulating properties of the polystyrene boxes is much appreciated by the bees, and if there is a downside, it is when it comes to cleaning said boxes. Unlike the wooden full size boxes that can be scraped and gone over with a blowlamp to ensure good hygiene, this cannot be done with the poly-nucs. However, I am experimenting with a wallpaper stripper and steam cleaning appears to be working. I do have wooden nuc boxes and they can be scorched.

All colonies are showing external activity and the foragers, when they can get out, are returning with pollen which is always a good sign. Very shortly, the beginner's course will be initiated and if there is one recommendation that we try to convey to the newcomer, it is that of having spare equipment!

Many new beekeepers will only wish to have one or maybe two hives at the most, so see no requirement for extra equipment. As the year progresses, the occupants of their hives will increase rapidly: left to themselves, the bees will control the situation of overcrowding by swarming!

So if you wish to keep your bees, there are manoeuvres that can be carried out, but they do require spare kit. Swarming is a natural cycle in the life of a honeybee.

Grant aid to activity groups and sports clubs

FUNDING totalling £68,478 has been shared between local clubs and projects developing new opportunities for physical activity in the Vale.

The Community Chest scheme is funded by Sport Wales and managed locally by the Sports Development section of the Vale Council's Healthy Living Team.

Organisations across the Vale applied for funding. These included Barry Basketball Club, who are looking to increase the number of female adults at the club, Vale Vipers Girls Basketball, who are looking to increase the number of under-12s playing and Barry Squash, who will deliver female-only sessions in the future.

Elsewhere, funding has been used for training courses for coaches and volunteers, to buy equipment for new activities, to promote their projects and to pay hire fees.

The grants distributed are not purely for sporting activities. They have also been used to develop new physical activity opportunities, such as running and cycling groups.

Non-sport organisations successful in receiving Community Chest funding over the last year include Amelia Methodist Trust Company Ltd, Newydd Housing Association and Graig & Penllyn Residents Association, who received funding for signage for an activity exercise trail in the outdoors.

The Community Chest scheme is set to return in the new financial year (April 2019-March 2020), with £81,500 available for Vale organisations.

For more information, telephone Karen Davies, principal healthy living officer for the Vale Council on 01446 704793, before submitting your proposal by the April 4 deadline.

If you are interested in joining this group, the walk will take place on the last Thursday of every month at 10.30am and meets outside Barry Island train station. the walk will last between 45 to 60 minutes.

This Captain is Marvel-lous!

IT'S safe to say that the ending of Avengers: Infinity War left audiences pretty shellshocked.

If you were able to stick around for the typical Marvel Studios post-credit sting, you would have seen Nicky Fury activate a pager before (spoiler alert) turning to ash and vanishing.

We finally get to find out who that pager belonged to in Captain Marvel, as we meet, for the first time, Brie Larson's titular hero.

Vers (Larson) is an extraterrestrial Kree warrior, who has memories of another life as US Air Force pilot, Carol Danvers.

When Vers crashes on earth, she inadvertently teams up with S.H.I.E.L.D agent Nick Fury (Samuel L Jackson), and the pair begin to investigate her memories, all the while trying to stop an intergalactic war that threatens the planet...

Marvel Studios currently occupy the rarified air of rarely putting a foot wrong; however, as Spider-Man's Uncle Ben once pointed out, "With great power comes great responsibility".

The arrival of Captain Marvel comes with the added caveat of being the first Marvel film to be headlined by a female character, so much like last year's Black Panther it comes with an added weight.

By and large it's a weight that it handles well, and even if it's a film that doesn't trouble the upper echelons of the Marvel output so far, it's a wholly satisfying origin story for the newest addition to the ever-growing stable of characters.

The film opens with some clunkiness - the backstory of Captain Marvel/Carol Danvers/Vers is a convoluted one that doesn't benefit from some of the choices made in the opening 20 minutes here.

Once it settles down, it becomes a far smoother and more enjoyable ride.

The characteristics of previous Marvel films are present, either knowingly or unwittingly (there's a dash of Guardians of the Galaxy, a pinch of Thor) which does mean that the film only really develops its own identity around the halfway mark, but it hits notes that, while familiar, are enjoyable enough to carry it through.

Hiring directing duo Ryan Boden and Anna Fleck (more used to playing in the low-budget playground with the likes of Half-Nelson and Mississippi Grind) was another bold directorial choice by Marvel, but one that doesn't wholly pay off.

While the pair have a sure enough handle on the character beats, the action sequences don't have enough personality, feeling helmed by committee rather than carrying the tenets of the directing duo.

Where the film really hits home is in the performances. Brie Larson is a perfect fit for the lead character, delivering a strong turn as she attempts to discover who she really is, and her chemistry with Samuel L Jackson's de-aged Nick Fury is a real delight.

This 'buddy road movie' element is one of the film's strengths, and the pair are in fine form.

Around them other performances are solid, from the likes of Jude Law and Annette Bening, while Ben Mendehlson is a delight as Skrull leader Talos and Lashana Lynch, as Carol's friend Maria, is great in the opportunities she's given.

The narrative beats feel a tad familiar, seemingly using the origin story template with some slightly telegraphed twists, no doubt one of the downfalls of being the 21st Marvel film, but it all comes together into something that is well worth watching.

If it falls a little short of the studios' finest output (and after the films they released last year that's hardly a harsh criticism) it still carries enough of the Marvel charm to see it through – Captain Marvel is marvellous fun.

VERDICT: It doesn't hit the ground running, but once Captain Marvel hits its stride it becomes a very good film indeed. There are some small signs of Marvel fatigue, mainly in the direction and narrative beats, but the performances have great charm and carry the film, especially Brie Larson and Samuel L Jackson. Recommended.

SEE THIS IF YOU LIKED: Guardians of the Galaxy (2014), Thor (2011).

Llandow Carpet Studio – for your flooring needs

LLANDOW Carpet Studio is a new name for flooring in the Vale.

The company is run by the Terrett family who have been in business in Llantwit Major and the Vale since 1978. They have always handled all types of flooring but were better known as interior design consultants. A few years ago, Patrick and Susan Terrett decided to stop offering interior design services and turned the studio into a flooring showroom, specialising in Cormar carpets.

After Byron Terrett won the British Carpet Fitting competition in 2017, interest for his services started coming in from all over the country, the studio was developed to cover all markets from reasonably priced carpets and vinyls to high end carpets and Amitco, costing up to £200 per square metre.

The company operates from Unit 21K at the Vale Business Park, Llandow. This is the home of the company's main operation as flooring contractors to new home builders Persimmon and Taylor Wimpey. From here, the parent company, Ourown Designs Ltd, travels all over south Wales installing carpets for new home builders.

Patrick Terrett told The GEM that Llandow Carpet Studio was set up to look after local people who want flooring and it has proved to be a huge success, with customers returning and recommending all the time.

Large carpet stores can be a bit disconcerting as the choice is vast and confusing. Llandow Carpet Studio try and work on an appointment basis so that Patrick Terrett can be available to help you with your selection personally.

Alternatively, you can call any time between 9am and 5pm, Monday to Friday, and have a look around the studio at your leisure. However, we must point out that the studio is up a flight of stairs. If the stairs are a problem, Patrick will have a chat and bring samples down for you to look at; he also offers a home visit if needed.

Winners of the British Carpet Fitting Championship are not allowed to defend, so you can win it only once. Byron won in 2017 and John Wright, who was second, won it in 2018. Byron and John, who lives in Oxford, have become very good friends and they get together when either of them has a person who simply wants the best, and for flooring installations that need the best fitters in the country. This year, they will be working on the homes of some very famous people, but more than that we cannot say!

Llandow Carpet Studio will almost certainly have flooring to suit every person's needs and budget.

Contact them on 01446 775050 or email mail@llandowcarpetstudio.co.uk.

Art and craft group meet in Llantwit Major

Care – when and where you need it the most– for your four-legged friends

VALE Veterinary Centre prides itself on offering exceptional veterinary care and an unrivalled service, whether at our surgeries or when required at your home, supported by a 24 hours 7 day a week on call service.

It is a local, independent and family-run business where your pet is guaranteed continuity of care from a dedicated team of vets and nursing staff.

The aim is to provide a unique and bespoke service delivering the very highest standard of care, thus allowing the practice to stand apart from the care your pet may currently be receiving.

Vale Veterinary Centre first opened in Barry in 2014, with its centre on Ty Verlon Industrial Estate (near McDonalds) on Cardiff Road. By reputation and success, the practice flourished, and a second centre was opened last year in Cardiff on Cathedral Road near Pontcanna Fields.

Services offered include home visits, emergency services, recovery and rehabilitation, on-site X-raying, hydrotherapy, a VIP service, and clinical laser surgery.

Laser surgery was introduced as part of Vale Veterinary Centre's continual striving to upgrade its facilities to provide the best, and latest standards of care.

The technique - the laser is unique to the practice - minimises tissue damage and aids a more rapid recovery for your pet.

The standards of excellence at Vale Veterinary Centre has been recognised with national awards. Richard Williams, who set up the Vale Veterinary Centre following five years of general practice and emergency hospital experience, was awarded 'Vet of the Year' 2016/17 by PetPlan, the largest UK insurance provider, an award that was voted for by the public.

Vale Veterinary Centre has also continued the success of the practice by bagging three out of eight awards for vets all over the UK in the VetPlus annual awards in London in November 2017 and again in 2018.

Barry is breathing better, thanks to new singing group

A NEW singing group set up in Barry is making a big difference to people with lung disease.

Funded by the British Lung Foundation (BLF) and the National Lottery, the Singing for Lung Health group has been running since November and is for anyone with a lung condition, such as chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), asthma and IPF.

The program is designed to help ease breathlessness and encourage people living with lung disease to have fun and make friends.

After only two months, many of the members are seeing significant benefits. Local resident, Irene Webber, said: "Last year, I was diagnosed with Interstitial Lung Disease and I suffer from breathlessness. Singing for Lung Health is very enjoyable and fun.

"We do exercises and sing songs designed to improve breathing, and as a result my lung capacity has increased. We also get hand-outs so we can do more at home.

"It is very convenient and easy to get to. I wish we had had something like this years ago when I was a nurse. It allows people to do something for themselves, and not rely just on medication."

Another member said: "I cough quite a lot, especially in the evenings. But on the days when I go to Singing for Lung Health, I don't cough at all. It really works for me – it's wonderful!"

Classes are run by Ruth Bradshaw who runs several community and wellbeing choirs locally.

Ruth said: "Anyone who wants to breathe better can join us. You don't need to be able to sing in tune or have any singing experience whatsoever and you don't have to register –just turn up, come and have a sing and a laugh with us."

The sessions take place every Wednesdays between 1.30pm-2.30pm at the Margaret Alexander Community Centre, 11 Alexandra Crescent, Barry CF62 7HU. For further information about the local group, call 03000 555 555 or visit blf.org.uk/ort-in-your-area

Vale MP announces eighth marathon run for charity

VALE MP Alun Cairns has announced that he will be running the London Marathon again this year to raise money for the Dementia Revolution and Guide Dogs.

Mr Cairns launched his fundraising campaign on Barry Island with representatives from both charities as he seeks to match the £10,000 that he raised for NSPCC Cymru and Atal Y Fro at the 2018 Marathon.

He has chosen to donate to the 'Dementia Revolution', in which Alzheimer's Society and Alzheimer's Research have joined forces to raise funds through the London Marathon.

The Vale MP was joined by Ceri Smith from Alzheimer's Research, Jess Bowring from Alzheimer's Society and local volunteers, including Teresa and Denis McGuire from Llantwit Major, Steven Blackman from Cowbridge and Jane Weldon from Barry.

Teresa McGuire, who runs the Dementia Café in Llantwit Major said: "Alun visited our Dementia Café at one of our coffee mornings. I want to thank him for choosing the Dementia Revolution as one of his charities and for supporting us and giving a platform for local volunteers like myself to share their experience with Alzheimer's."

Sue Phelps, director for Alzheimer's Society Cymru said: "We are delighted that Alun Cairns has joined the Dementia Revolution to run the London Marathon. Dementia is the biggest health threat facing society and there are currently no effective treatments to slow, prevent or cure it."

The keen marathon-running MP will also be raising funds for Guide Dogs, who provide life-changing services to the 360,000 people who are registered blind or partially sighted. He was joined by members of the Guide Dog team including Andrea Gordon and her guide dog Kayley, Deborah Rees and Peter Jones.

A spokesperson for Guide Dogs said: "We rely on the generosity of the public and participants taking parts in events like these to allow us to continue our life changing work."

Information on how to donate to Mr Cairns' fundraising campaign can be found on his social media and website. All money will be split equally between the charities. To donate, visit the link virginmoneygiving.com/aluncairns.

Old Duffers United over-50s walking football team.

'Old Duffers' team a tonic for men of a certain age

A LOCAL man who has started an over-50s 'walking football team' for men who are bored, depressed or just want to get fit, has been amazed by the response he has received.

Gary Angel (53) a Vale Council employee, has called the team Old Duffers United and they meet up regularly in Cadoxton.

He said: "I publicised the idea on Facebook and the first week we had eight guys and by week four we were already up to 18. It's really caught on.

"Last week, I even had a call from a man who was in a hospital bed because of a mini-stroke asking if he could come along. Some of the players are recovering from injuries of one sort or another – I had a massive knee op myself.

"There are men who want to get fit, others might be bored or depressed – it means they have something to look forward to on a Wednesday evening. We meet at Cadoxton Sports Hall behind Cadoxton School. Things have gone so well, I'm thinking of starting up another group on Sundays.

"My partner Leann has been really supportive and once we've got this established, we want to start a team for women."

The group doesn't quibble too much on age qualifications, the youngest is 47, the oldest is 74. Gary insists that although it's walking football, people shouldn't underestimate the health benefits: "During one match I took 8,700 steps."

Interested local men should contact Gary in advance on 07545 320 632 so he knows the numbers attending. 'Duffers United Walking Footie' can be found on Facebook.

Are you able to provide Supported Lodgings?

LLAMAU are currently looking for people from the Vale to provide a supportive home for homeless young people.

In this article, a young person who lives in Supported Lodgings explains how this scheme has helped her, while a Provider, who offers a room in her home to young people who are homeless, explains why she is part of the scheme.

The young person's story…* I was referred to Llamau by Social Services after I had been asked to leave the family home.

Throughout this time I suffered with mental health issues, anger issues, and self-medicated with cannabis. I took part in Llamau's Family Mediation, to see if my mum and I could build on our relationship, but things had gone too far.

Llamau spoke to me about my options and, together, we agreed that I would go into a Supported Lodgings placement. I was introduced to a Supported Lodgings provider, who was a single woman, and I moved into her house within days.

It was a daunting experience, but I received a lot of support throughout from Llamau, and from the Supported Lodgings provider I was living with.

I started to settle down in school and was able to achieve my GCSE qualifications. The independent skills I was learning helped me address my drug and anger issues, and my mental health improved immensely.

I worked hard to put my past life behind me and started to look forward to my future.

After leaving school I attended Cardiff and Vale College, and achieved Level 1 and Level 2 in Catering and Hospitality. I have now started an apprenticeship in catering with the Coal Exchange Hotel in Cardiff and I enjoy going to work.

I'm looking forward to being independent and will be moving into my own flat at the end of March. My life has changed dramatically through living in Supported Lodgings.

My mum and I now have a good relationship, and I have a special relationship with the woman that helped me change my life.

It is the best thing I have done, getting involved with Llamau and living in a great house, with a wonderful woman who has become a big part of my life.

Lynne Appleyard tells of how she got involved with Llamau…* Homelessness has always been an important cause to me. When the opportunity with Llamau's Supported Lodgings scheme presented itself, I jumped at the chance to be involved.

The young people Llamau support are really not to blame for the frightening situations in which they find themselves. Imagine sleeping on a piece of cardboard with just a thin blanket to cover yourself. These young people are vulnerable and at risk of abuse – sexual, mental and physical.

I believe that the young people Llamau support are the future, not only for us, but for the next generation as well. We must break the cycle of homelessness by offering young people a home in which they are welcome, and a comfortable, non-threatening environment in which they have the best opportunity to thrive at a pace that suits them.

I have been involved with Llamau's Supported Lodgings Scheme since it began and, during that time, I have helped over 100 young people to move forward into independent and purposeful futures.

I believe in the future, I believe in these young people, and Llamau has enabled me to fulfil my wish of a providing homeless young people the chance of a brighter future.

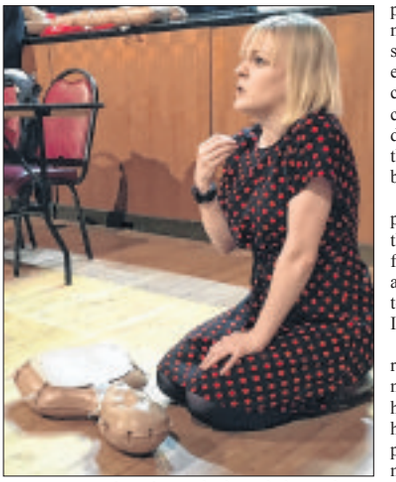
Parkrunners' free CPR training

AN A & E doctor from Penarth is giving free CPR training to Barry parkrunners after a cardiac arrest at her local parkrun last year.



Katie Clark, an emergency medicine trainee at Prince Charles Hospital, Merthyr, is a regular runner at Barry Island parkrun. In October 2018, she was taking part in the parkrun with her partner when another runner collapsed nearby.

A group of runners led by Katie and her partner performed CPR on the man and used the parkrun's defibrillator until the emergency services arrived.

Since then, Katie has been organising CPR training sessions for Barry Island parkrun to share her knowledge and teach the lifesaving skills to as many people as possible.

Katie held a training session at the Paget Rooms in Penarth on March 5.

She said: "The incident at Barry Island parkrun got me thinking about CPR sessions for parkrunners, volunteers and their families across Wales, including defibrillator training. All parkruns are required to obtain a defibrillator if they don't already have one, and no new parkrun can start up unless they have access to one.

"I contacted Adam Fletcher at British Heart Foundation (BHF) Cymru and Chris Davies, parkrun ambassador for Wales. They told me that a CPR initiative had been started by BHFCymru and parkrun in Wales and had trained more than 100 volunteers, but they had slowed down due to a shortage of available trainers.

"I suggested we use the knowledge and skills of junior doctors across the parkrun community in Wales, who are already trained to perform CPR and basic life support as part of their jobs. I've recently recruited a group of junior doctors in a local hospital as trainers for these sessions and hope to build on this."

Adam Fletcher, Head of BHF Cymru, said: "I'm so grateful to Katie for all her support. If more people learn CPR, more lives can be saved. We know that every minute without cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) and defibrillation reduces the chance of survival by up to 10 per cent."

Katie and her partner recently met the man who survived following his cardiac arrest when he returned to volunteer at Barry Island parkrun.

She said: "It was really emotional meeting him, seeing him looking well and helping out at the parkrun. It's spurred me on to pass on the message that having the skills to perform CPR means more lives can be saved."

BHF Cymru's Call Push Rescue CPR training kits are available in Welsh and English and are free to eligible Welsh secondary schools. They are also available to order by community groups and workplaces. For more information about CPR, visit: www.bhf.org.uk

Offering you so much more...

MEMBERS of the public can sometimes get into a little bit of a rut, when it comes to buying the household goods that they need.

The natural first thought is the high street, or something with the word 'retail' in it – a retail park, perhaps.

Of course, those who know better are well aware that many of the best suppliers are not so visible – and are to be found on industrial estates.

On the Bridgend Industrial Estate, for instance, many of the businesses welcome retail customers, and more and more people are becoming aware of this. It's a competitive world, and companies have to offer a good deal to prosper. That is why it is well worth taking a good look at your local industrial estate. You may well find exactly what you need today there – and probably what you will need tomorrow too!

All you need at Riverside Hardware

RIVERSIDE Hardware remains a family concern under the management of MDs Russell John and Ryan Woodbridge.

We are well known throughout south Wales for our unrivalled range of fixings and fasteners, PPE and janitorial products. Riverside are one of the largest stockists of Draper Tools in the UK, with a large selection of hand and power tools, they are also the main dealer for Calor Gas in the area.

Riverside Hardware has the tools you need, no matter how demanding the job. With our showroom of over 5,000sq. ft, and our skilled team offering the product knowledge and customer service to match, no other supplier comes close.

Keltic Fires revamp will offer 'new and luxurious products'

AS we are approaching our fourth year in business at our Bridgend Industrial Estate showroom, we have decided to rejuvenate and revamp our shop with new and luxurious products.

This year we have seen the likes of the award winning Dru Maestro range installed in the showroom, and in the coming months we will see far more models and brands which will excite new and existing customers.

As we have over 20 years' experience in the industry we feel as though we have the right blend of contemporary and traditional products available to suit all needs and wants.

If clients are still struggling to find something suitable we offer free, on site visits to help with any questions and queries or to give exact prices.

Theodore's - the very apotheosis of reclamation yards..

HAVING a chat with the very personable Denis Theodore, we decide that the phrase 'Aladdin's Cave' is overused, and instead I shall call Theodore's Reclamation the summit, the acme, pinnacle, the apogee, the zenith, the very apotheosis of reclamation yards.

And it is. For someone like me who prefers old to new, and knows that chaps like Denis have been 'recycling' , 'reloving' and 'upcycling' since before the hipsters that use these words were born, it's like a toy shop. Slates? Yep. Doors? But of course. A chimney pot? Not a problem. Finials and crests? More than you can shake a stick at. Fires, hearths and beams? Oh yes...

Theodore's – on North Road in Bridgend Industrial Estate – is the place. If they don't have it, they can usually source it. If you have something to sell, they may wish to buy it.

I ask Denis about 'trends', and in addition to fires and fireplaces ("The things everyone was ripping out 30 years ago..." he says), the Green Man, a symbol of rebirth, is rather in vogue these days and enjoying its own second coming.

For the man, indeed woman, who thinks he or she has everything, a quick visit to Theodore Sons & Daughters will prove them wrong. An ideal, and very different, shopping experience.

Vale Mayor explains decision to abstain at budget meeting

THE Vale of Glamorgan Mayor, Cllr Leighton Rowlands, has explained why he abstained on budget proposals at an emergency meeting of the council.

The Vale Council is a Conservative-Independent administration, but Vale Leader, Cllr John Thomas, relied on Labour votes to get the budget and council tax increase of 4.9 per cent through last Friday, March 8.

A total of 11 Conservatives abstained on the budget vote and the Vale Mayor Cllr Rowlands, also a Conservative, explained: "As mayor it was very difficult for me to take the decision to abstain on the budget.

"As mayor, it is my duty to promote the interests and reputation of the council and the Vale as a whole and act as an ambassador for both. I was simply not satisfied that Vale council tax payers were getting value for money out of the proposed increase and saving targets were not being met.

"I had concerns about a range of issues and that's why I took the difficult decision to abstain on the budget." TC

Exciting plans for new Vale campuses

THE Vale Council and Cardiff and Vale College (CAVC) are working on ambitious proposals for two new multi-million-pound college campus developments – one at Barry Waterfront and the other at Cardiff Airport.

Next week, the council's cabinet will consider the sale of two pieces of land to the college, one located at the Innovation Quarter at the Waterfront and the other on land near the airport.

Cllr Jonathan Bird, cabinet member for regeneration and planning, said: "While negotiations are at an early stage the council is very keen to help Cardiff and Vale College realise its ambition of delivering two new state of the art college campuses in the Vale.

"The sites we have identified offer huge potential. Barry Waterfront is perhaps the most innovative urban regeneration project in Wales. It currently offers first class leisure opportunities, retail outlets and transport links, alongside a mix of housing. A sector-leading higher education campus would be yet another exciting development.

"Equally, development of the second site near to Cardiff Airport would be an exciting early step on developing an area that we see driving forward economic development in the Vale in the near future."

Mark Roberts, chief operating officer at CAVC, said: "We have an ambitious programme of investing in delivering innovative opportunities and facilities for learning in Cardiff and the Vale that will inspire current and future generations. The plans would be a major boost for the college, which is the third largest in the UK.

"This proposal features two brand new state-of-the-art campuses: one at Barry Waterfront which will offer a wide range of vocational and further education courses, and an aerospace and advanced manufacturing campus at Cardiff Airport with STEM centre, IT and cyber security courses."

The GEM understands the college would like to open both campuses in September 2022, but that learning would continue at existing Vale sites until that date so no learning or students would be disrupted.

Cake sale at church hall

'Local politics is not about grabbing headlines'

Cllr John Thomas, the Leader of the Vale Council, on the recent council tax vote

BEING Leader of the Vale Council means having to take difficult decisions, especially in the context of year on year reductions in funding from Welsh Government.

It is grossly naïve to think that we can continue to provide essential local services without having to increase council tax and look at new ways of generating income.

That being said, if you look at council tax rises across Wales there are only three lower than that agreed for the Vale last week. Indeed our increase of only 4.9 per cent compares very favourably with authorities like Pembrokeshire (9.9 per cent), Conwy (9.6 per cent) and Powys (9.5 per cent), and a host of others who have gone over the 5 per cent mark.

My term as leader of a council has seen the council consistently outperform others in terms of the quality of services, while operating on a very lean budget; and I am very proud of the fact that in 2019/20 the Vale will have the sixth lowest council tax rate in Wales, despite receiving a very low level of funding from Welsh Government.

It was a shock to me when four of my Conservative colleagues voted against the budget. Not least because they had made no contribution to the public debate whatsoever. For colleagues to come out in the press now, saying that they had issues with the council tax increase and value for money for residents is rather disingenuous when this matter had been discussed in group meetings on a number of occasions, and no opposition to the figures was raised.

Cllr John Thomas.

The vote on the budget is one of the, if not the, most important decisions that the council makes during the year. Our inability to agree this at the first attempt caused not only embarrassment to the Conservative administration and the council as a whole but also made very real the possibility that we would fail to meet our legal obligations.

It was in this context that I met with members of the group immediately after the vote. I had hoped to agree a way forward. It became quickly clear, however, that I could not rely on their support.

It would have been irresponsible to go into the Special council meeting unsure of whether the budget would be approved, and it was against this context that cross party discussions were held; and I will make no apologies for reaching out to colleagues across the political spectrum when so much was at stake.

This was in the best interests of both the Vale of Glamorgan as a community and the council as an organisation. In setting a budget I have not given in to demands from those within the group or outside. I have listened, and engaged, and have sought at every step to ensure that the Vale maintains the excellent reputation that has been built up over the years.

Being Leader of the Council means making tough and sometimes unpopular decisions. Local politics is not a game. It is not about scoring political points. It isn't about grabbing headlines and it certainly isn't a PR exercise. While appearances may be a major concern for some, my biggest concern will always be the interests of those thousands of people who rely on council services every day.

This is how I have always operated and, given the opportunity, is how I will continue to run the council.

Sarah tackles her '42 at 42'

LOCAL resident Sarah Miles is taking on the London Marathon on April 28.

Sarah told The GEM: "I am using the tagline '42 at 42', because April 28 this year is my 42nd birthday so it seems fitting to run a 42km race on that day!"

Sarah is a managing director of the local organisation 'With Music In Mind' and says she has had amazing support from the group members.

She said: "The training schedule is gruelling and without the encouragement of my family, friends, colleagues, members of my choir Côr Bro Ogwr and the lovely With Music In Mind singers, it would be so difficult."

She ran the marathon 15 years ago in aid of Headway Cardiff and is looking forward to challenging her previous time with 15 years more mileage on the clock!

Sarah is raising money for local children's hospice Tŷ Hafan, the Vale-based charity that provides holistic palliative care for children with life-limiting conditions and their families from throughout Wales.

She is a committee member of the Elis Rose Legacy Fund, which so far has successfully raised over £11,000 for Tŷ Hafan.

Sarah Miles training for the London Marathon.

Sarah said: "My goal is to raise a further £2,000 for the charity through the London Marathon. I have a VirginMoneyGiving page which can be found by searching 'Sarah Miles 42 at 42', sponsorship forms and collection boxes in local shops such as the Tŷ Hafan shop in Cowbridge and Cowbridge leisure centre.

"The local primary school Y Bont Faen is going to have a non-uniform day just before the Easter holidays and beautiful harmonious singing duo Indigo May are putting on a concert on April 6 at 7.30pm in the Duke of Wellington, tickets are £10 each."

Travelodge has eyes on Penarth

PENARTH has been chosen as one of seven locations where Travelodge wants to open a hotel in an expansion programme that collectively represents an investment value of £45 million and will create 200 new jobs in Wales, including 25 jobs and an investment of around £7 million for third party investors in Penarth.

The other six locations on the Travelodge Wales expansion programme are Aberystwyth, Pwllheli, Swansea, Tenby, Torfaen/Blaenau and Wrexham.

A Travelodge spokesperson said: "Penarth has been identified as a key target area, as it is growing from strength to strength and attracting record visitor numbers. However, there remains a shortage of good quality, low cost accommodation.

"The new hotel would also help attract new visitors to the area and boost the local economy, as Travelodge research shows its customers spend on average double their room rate with local businesses, which equates to a multimillion spend annually."

Family's plea after 'cruel' theft of horses

ABOVE and RIGHT: The horses that were stolen.

A Vale resident has spoken of her disgust after two of her horses were stolen overnight on Friday, March 1.

Tequilla Huntley said: "The horses were stolen from a livery yard at Bonvilston.

"They are so beautiful and our absolute world. It's a disgusting thing to do.

"We are offering a reward for any valid information about this. They are very distinguishable and have very distinctive traits.

"I don't know what sort of person can do such a cruel thing.

"The next night the tack room was broken into and equipment such as rugs, saddles and bridles taken.

"I think the horses are probably still local and I'm appealing to local people to keep a lookout."

A South Wales Police spokeswoman said: "We are investigating the theft of two horses from a field near Springfield Lane, Bonvilston.

"The theft occurred sometime between 5.30pm on March 1 and 12.30pm on March 2. Both horses are brown in colour and stand at 16.3 hands.

"A number of items were also stolen from the stables including tack, two saddles, a Senci generator, a chainsaw and a hedge cutter."

Anyone with information is asked to call 101 quoting reference 1900079131 (horses) and 1900077142 (equipment) or call Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555 111.

‘It’s been muddy hell’ say Dinas Powys councillors

BARRATT Homes has apologised to residents in Dinas Powys following complaints about excessive amounts of mud and silt on local roads caused by construction traffic.

It said it is working closely with the Vale Council to “comply with all planning conditions” after being served with a formal notice.

The developer is building 215 houses at the former St Cyres School site and community councillors say that over the months, mud has coated Murch Road and Murch Crescent and splattered nearby cars.

Construction traffic from the development site goes straight into the village and community councillors have complained about excessive deposits of mud and silt on local roads.

Community councillor Chris Franks said: “It has taken six months of complaints from residents and Plaid community councillors to force the Vale Council to address the problem of mud and silt on Dinas Powys roads.

“The council has been timid and lacked resolve. The lack of effective action to protect residents has been a disgrace.

“At long last the county council has served a Section 187A notice on the developers BDW to properly implement planning conditions.

“The legal notice states that the developer has a month to address the breach of conditions.”

Wheel washing facilities were introduced at the Dinas Powys site, but Cllr Franks says the measure had not been effective enough: “The Vale Council states that the arrangements on site are not consistently preventing the depositing of mud and silt onto the public highway.

“In addition, the notice states there is no settlement pond or filtration system for the wheel wash and the road sweeper is not being deployed sufficiently.”

Steve Williams, the managing director of Barratt Homes South Wales, apologised to local residents for the inconvenience and said action was being taken to deal with the problem.

He said: “We always work to minimise the effects of construction and apologise to anyone who has been inconvenienced by work in Dinas Powys.

“We are working closely with Vale Council to ensure that we comply with all planning conditions and following recent bad weather we have made modifications to measures to minimise mud and silt deposits on the public highway.

“We have installed a tarmac surface to provide a smoother area for the jet-washing operation and installed a sump to collect any excess water running off the vehicles.

“The tyres of vehicles leaving the development during the day will continue to have their tyres cleaned by the jet-wash.”

Cllr Jonathan Bird, cabinet member for regeneration and planning at the Vale Council, said the council had been closely monitoring compliance at the development from the very start of construction.

He explained: “Our enforcement team has been working with the developer to overcome local residents’ concerns and has taken quick and decisive action to resolve breaches of the planning conditions when they have arisen.

“The council’s planning enforcement team contacted the developers on February 14 to specify a number of improvements required to keep the roads clean. This is the latest in a series of formal notices served on the developer.

“Subsequent site visits along with evidence provided by local residents made clear that initial improvements and attempts at compliance were simply not sufficient.

“While new arrangements for washing the wheels of vehicles leaving the site had been put in place, these were failing to ensure that excessive mud was not being deposited from the site onto the road.

“Consequently, on March 6, the Vale Council served the developer with their second Breach of Condition Notice.”

Cllr Bird added: “The developer has been given one month to ensure full compliance with the requirements of the notice. This is the minimum time allowed under planning legislation. Should the developer fail to comply with the requirements of the notice the council will consider a legal prosecution.”

Vale Council unveils new parking plans

A new approach to parking management across the Vale is to be considered by the council’s cabinet on Monday, March 18, with the council looking to introduce further charging in some car parks and also ‘on street’ in resorts.

No charges would be introduced for ‘on street’ town centre parking under the proposals. The proposals would see parking remain free of charge for the first two hours as well as free parking on Sundays in all town centre car parks. Permits would be available for regular users. Charges would apply for stays of longer than two hours in town centre car parks but not on street.

All year round resort car park charges are proposed for car parks at Barry Island, Ogmore-by-Sea and Southerndown. These charges vary between peak and off-peak times and parking would be free before 8am with reduced tariffs after 4pm. On street parking charges would also be applied at the resorts of Barry Island and Penarth Esplanade.

Under the proposals, which have been produced by council officers following a public consultation exercise in 2018, charges would also be applied at the coastal car parks of Barry’s Cold Knap, Cwm Col Huw in Llantwit Major and at Penarth’s Cliff Walk. These new charges will for 2019/20 only apply during the summer season.

Annual passes would be available for all resort and coastal car parks.

Charges of between £1 and £3 would be applied to Cosmeston Lakes and Porthkerry Country Parks between 8am and 6pm. Again, a reduced price annual pass would be available.

Parking for cars displaying a blue badge would remain free of charge in all instances.

A spokesperson for the council said: “Maintaining the Vale’s car parks costs the council upwards of £300,000 each year and this does not include the costs of managing the resorts they support.

“As was widely acknowledged during the debate on the council’s budget for 2019/20, we have no alternative but to seek to raise additional income if we wish to continue to provide the services that we know our residents want and which bring visitors to the Vale.

“We have listened carefully to the views shared during the consultation and the policy proposed differs significantly from that proposed by Capita. Parking will be free for two hours in all town centre car parks and town centre on street parking will incur no charge at all. We have done all we can to ensure these charges do not penalise local residents and where new charges are being proposed we have ensured these will be competitive with neighbouring local authority areas.

“The new measures for residents’ parking permits will also ensure that where spaces are at a premium local residents can ensure they have preference for a very reasonable cost, with no restriction on the number of permits that each household can apply for.”

If approved on March 18, the council’s new parking policy is likely to come into effect later this year once the legal framework is in place.

‘Tackling the problem of agricultural pollution’

THE issue of agricultural pollution is a concern for every farmer. A single pollution incident can cause huge harm to wildlife and the environment, while the steady, periodic or combined leaching of pollutants can lead to damaging concentrations of nitrates or other chemicals, resulting in problems such as algal blooms and the contamination of water supplies.

Rachel Saunders of the Farmers’ Union of Wales writes on Farming Matters.

Of course, pollution brings with it financial costs for farm businesses - whether directly, as a result of fines, or a result of the loss of valuable nutrients from soils and other adverse impacts.

Thankfully, the data available for agricultural pollution incidents from January 2010 to February 2018 shows only one per cent of farms in Wales to have been recorded as having a substantiated pollution incident; but some of those that have been attributed to farming were catastrophic, adding to existing pressures from members of the public, charities and other bodies to tighten up farming regulations.

Such pressures, which have been exacerbated by unusually wet periods in recent years, come against a background of legislative pressure due to Nitrate Vulnerable Zone and Water Framework Directive legislation.

For these reasons, the FUW has worked with others for decades to help address agricultural pollution in a proportionate and targeted way.

In recent years, a large proportion of this work has been through the FUW’s membership of the Welsh Land Management Forum (WLMF), chaired by Natural Resources Wales, and in particular the WLMF agricultural pollution sub-group, which has met monthly over the past two years.

Following a consultation on the expansion of Wales’ Nitrate Vulnerable Zones and a request from Welsh Government Cabinet Secretary Lesley Griffiths in April 2018, the group submitted a detailed report and 45 recommendations to the Cabinet Secretary.

While work by the group continued, with a particular emphasis on targeting actions in areas where problems are known to exist, it seems that the work of the Welsh Government ground to a halt in terms of considering the recommendations or the results of a programme of NRW farm visits aimed at identifying problems and appropriate solutions.

Lesley Griffiths has neither met with the group nor responded to the recommendations. Rather, the Welsh Government announced in November that it intends to bring forward legislation for the whole of Wales which is, to all intents and purposes, a cut-and-paste of the NVZ rules – increasing the number of Welsh farm holdings subject to costly and restrictive legislation from an estimated 600 to more than 24,000.

While there are problems that must be addressed, such a move is wholly disproportionate, and would undermine efforts to target pollution in those areas where action is needed, while adding huge costs and burdens in vast areas where no problems exist.

The GEM asked the Welsh Government to comment and The Minister for Environment, Energy and Rural Affairs, Lesley Griffiths, said: “Failure to tackle the issue of agricultural pollution would be highly damaging for Wales; in terms of its reputation, on the environment and for Wales’ future trading arrangements post-Brexit.

“The appropriate and fair way to deal with the issue of agricultural pollution in Wales is to tackle it at source, with measures aimed at dealing with poor practice which is still seen far too frequently across Wales.

“I have welcomed the recommendations made by the Wales Land Management Forum sub-group (WLMF) and we are already implementing a number of them.

“It remains the intention of the Welsh Government to establish the right balance of measures and officials from relevant departments meet with the WLMF on a monthly basis. The proposed regulations are proportionate, based upon good practice recommendations and will play an important role, alongside other measures, in helping address agricultural pollution in Wales.”

War doctor speaks in Penarth

SURGEON David Nott visited Penarth on February 28 to talk about his experiences over more than two decades, volunteering his skills in the world's most dangerous war zones. Hosted by Griffin Books at the Glamorganshire Golf Club, the event drew a sell-out crowd of over 120 people, all keen to hear his story.

Bookshop owner Mel Griffin interviewed Dr Nott about his recently published book, War Doctor, extracts from which had been read daily that week on BBC Radio 4. Dr Nott has completed an incredible 27 humanitarian missions, from Sarajevo to Syria, putting his own life at risk on numerous occasions.

He also played a key part in the international diplomacy leading to the successful evacuation of remaining civilians and medical professionals from East Aleppo in 2016. The event ended with a standing ovation for Dr Nott.

Griffin Books would like to thank the audience, who donated more than £360 for the David Nott Foundation, the charity established by Dr Nott and his wife to provide specialised training in trauma surgery to local doctors in conflict zones.

Signed copies of War Doctor are available from Griffin Books.

Vale horse comes third in Cheltenham classic

LLANCARFAN'S Evan Williams was delighted to say the least when his Silver Streak, the rank outsider at 80-1, finished third behind the Irish-trained Espoir D'Allen and Melon in Tuesday's classic Champion Hurdle at Cheltenham.

Silver Streak, the only grey in the 10-runner field and who had been runner-up in his previous three races was partnered by stable jockey Adam Wedge, who said: "He tried all the way through and I thought we would get second.''

The winner won by 15 lengths but there was only a neck between the second and third.

Williams, a former national champion point-to-point rider, told the press: "I'm over the moon. At one point I'd have been happy if he'd won a couple of little handicaps and he's ended up finishing third in the Champion Hurdle."

"I'm delighted, surprised and shocked," he added. "I can't believe it. The only thing I've got right with this horse is that he needed a genuine pace to come off. Nobody wants to see a horse in the wrong race. His performance has shown he was in the right race and it will be easier with him now we know he's good enough.''

Less than half-an-hour after Silver Streak's race, his stable companion Annie Bonny ran out a 13 lengths winner of the novices' handicap hurdle at Sedgefield under Mitchell Bastyan.

Silver Streak's third place earned his owner £47,745 and for winning at Sedgefield Annie Bonny's winning connections received £4,094.

Lily needs your votes!

A father is appealing for votes for his daughter to become a brand ambassador for an ice skating company.

Luke Walding, general manager of The Brecon & Radnor Express in Brecon, said his daughter Lily is one of 16 finalists who are in with the chance of becoming a Two Birds, which is an ice skating shop, ambassador.

The seven-year-old ice skater, from Cwmbran, puts in over 20 hours of practice a week in Cardiff and travels across the country for competitions.

Luke said: "Through the hard work and dedication from training 20-plus hours a week she deserves everybody to vote for her – she's only seven and she puts all that effort in. I am very proud, she's an amazing ice skater and an amazing person."

Two ice skaters will be chosen to become brand ambassadors following the competition – one from the under-12 category and another from the over-12 category.

The proud father-of-two said: "When I watch Lily compete, for those two to four minutes on the ice, its like the whole world disappears and its just her.

"The way she performs to the music completely captivates my attention, a feeling of being almost hypnotised by how amazing she is.

"Her dedication and passion for ice skating is second to none and I honestly believe she has the ability to become something special."

To vote for Lily, go to the Two Birds website and watch her personal video before filling in the form. Only one vote is allowed per email address.

Voting will close on Friday, March 15 at 6pm and the winners will be announced live on the Two Birds London Facebook page.

Lady golfers enjoy St David's Day

First team Leeks.

First team Daffodils

ON February 28, a very wet day, following several warm and sunny days, the Ladies of Cottrell Park Golf Club played a St David's Day competition, a nine hole Stableford with best two out of three scores to count.

They divided into two teams: the Leeks versus the Daffodils, the Leeks winning with the highest total score. There were prizes for the best group of three in each team: the Leeks, Nan Thomas, Patricia Haines and Helen Ruttley with 34 points, and the Daffodils, Patricia Davies, Rusty Fone and Regina Drew with 33 points. Lorraine Pointon-Bell presented the prizes, her last official duty as Ladies' captain.

All the players were thoroughly soaked on their return but spirits remained high as they enjoyed coffee and welsh cakes.

Barry Town United represented in 'C' international match

WHILE Ryan Giggs prepares the national team for the start of a new qualifying campaign next week, no fewer than five Barry Town United players will be on international duty in Giggs' home city, as the Wales C squad reconvenes for another crack at their English counterparts.

Kayne McLaggon, Jordan Cotterill, Robbie Patten, Clayton Green, and Chris Hugh will travel to link up with Mark Jones and Owain Tudor Jones' training camp in Manchester, immediately following Barry's re-arranged JD Welsh Premier League meeting between Barry and Bala.

The ensuing C international between England and Wales, the second in as many seasons, will be played at the new-look Peninsula Stadium, home of National League promotion hopefuls Salford City, the club part-owned by Giggs and a host of former Manchester United teammates.

One year ago, the C Lions roared to success in a 3-2 thriller in Barry, with Fejiri Okenabirhie catching the eye with a match-winning hat-trick.

With five inclusions in Jones' 21-man squad, Barry are the most represented club side from either of the nations.

S4C will be streaming the full 90 minutes via the Sgorio Facebook page, with kick-off at 7.45pm.

North Cornelly man joins British team

NORTH Cornelly's Paul Davies will be a member of the British para table tennis team competing in the Lignano Masters Open in Italy from March 14-16.

Davies, at 52 the oldest member of the 16-strong British team, will compete in the men's class one category.

Ranked sixth in the world, he is an experienced competitor and was a medallist at the 2012 Paralympics in London.

He was paralysed in a motorbike accident in 1986 and later took up table tennis.

The Lignano tournament marks the start of the sport's qualification period for the Tokyo Paralympics in 2020, and Davies will be looking to make an early impression.

Barry Beavers hold AGM

ON February 7 Barry Beavers had their AGM at the Civic Offices, Barry.

They discussed events such as PiP (Party In the Park) 3, the summer trip and the Christmas party.

On February 9, both Nadine and Nicholas, along with Nadia and Jen Thomson were issued with their instructors' shirts to wear in the pool during club sessions, and for the Halliwick training course later that month.

These four members went on to do the Foundation phase course, which others from clubs across Wales and abroad also attended. They had an assessor to run the four-day course at Barry Leisure Centre.

They all completed it and were presented with their certificates by the assessor (Ann Gresswell). They all will look into doing the advanced course later this year, which will run at Barry Leisure Centre again.

On and Off The Turf with Brian Lee

VALE trainers Tim Vaughan and Christian Williams both saddled winners on Monday, March 4.

Vaughan's Glimpse Of Gold, partnered by stable jockey Alan Johns, landed the Selling Handicap Hurdle at Southwell finishing eight lengths ahead of Kilcaragh Boy; and Williams' Fifty Shades, at six the youngest horse in the three miles handicap chase, got home by half-a-length from the top-weighted Sackett.

Williams' Uno Mas failed to make it a four-timer when finishing half-a-length behind the top-weighted Canyon City in the Fakenham £10,00 handicap hurdle.

TUESDAY SUCCESS FOR WELSH JOCKEYS

WELSH jockeys Connor Brace, Lorcan Williams and Sean Bowen all rode winners at Exeter on March 5.

Brace, whose grandfather David Brace OBE runs the Dunraven Stud at Pyle, took the opening handicap hurdle on the Phillip Hobbs-trained Smarty Wild.

Williams – no relation to Evan Williams – was later successful on the top-weighted Truckers Lodge trained by Paul Nicholls, and later again in the afternoon Pembrokeshire's Sean Bowen won on Billy Broncho for Llancarfan's Evan Williams.

Evan's daughter Isabel, riding her father's 33-1 chance Firebird Flyer was beaten just three quarters of a length by Jai Froid.

Over at Newcastle, trainer Tim Vaughan's 301 mile journey from Aberthin proved worthwhile as his stable jockey Alan Johns took the opening novices' handicap hurdle on Oriental Cross, who was returned at odds of 5-1.

ANOTHER WINNER FOR CONNOR

CONNOR Brace, who hails from the Vale, chalked-up another winner when riding former leading National Hunt jockey Sam Thomas' six-year-old IWillDoIt to an eight lengths win over Same Circus in the Cheltenham Festival On Racing TV Handicap Hurdle at Catterick, on March 6.

Thomas trains at Lisvane in Cardiff and IWillDoIt was returned the 11/8 favourite.

Less than 24 hours after riding I*WillDoIt* to victory in the 4.20 at Catterick on Wednesday, Porthcawl Connor Brace was back in the winners' enclosure at Carlisle after he had won the opening 2.20 race the Conditionals And Amateurs Hurdle on the Venitia Williams-trained Jurys Out.

Jurys Out, the 2-1 favourite, won by four lengths from Strike West.

TIM'S SANDOWN WINNER

ABERTHIN trainer Tim Vaughan saw his Le Milos land the opening Get Switched On With Matchbook Juvenile Handicap Hurdle at Sandown Park last Saturday.

Well ridden by stable jockey Alan Johns, Le Milos, a 20-1 outsider came home four lengths ahead of the favourite The Knot Is Tied which, ridden by Bryony Frost, was finishing in the runner-up spot for the third time in a row.

Another Welsh rider to ride a winner at Sandown was Sean Bowen who won the Open National Hunt Flat race on 5-1 chance Misty Whisky for Henry Fry.

Llancarfan's Evan Wiilliams was successful at Hereford with his five-year-old Esprit Du Large which, ridden by stable jockey Adam Wedge, took the MansionBet Novices' Hurdle by 10 lengths from the odds-on Newtown Boy.

In the afternoon, Bargoed's David Probert won the SunRacing.Co.UK Lincoln Trail Handicap at Wolverhampton on the Andrew Balding-trained Zwayan, a 7-1 chance, and in the evening at Kempton Park he scored on 11-4 favourite Nylon Speed for Alan King.

BRECON & TALYBONT HUNT STEEPLECHASES

OWNERS, riders and trainers from the Vale will be heading to Llanfrynach on Sunday for the Brecon & Talybont Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases and Cowbridge's Byron Moorcroft will be hoping to ride a few more winners in his bold bid to win the Welsh Riders' Championship.

Merthyr Mawr's Jack Tudor will also be hoping he can come away with a winner of two in his bid to land the national novice riders' title. The first race is at 1pm.

A DOZEN UP FOR BYRON

COWBRIDGE'S Byron Moorcroft chalked-up his 12th winner of the season when landing the restricted race on Sarah McQueen's Havent Time at the Flint & Denbigh Hunt Point-To-Point Steeplechases on Sunday.

Welsh champion rider Bradley Gibbs riding Jane Price's Terrierman took division two of the open maiden on Terrierman.

CONNOR AGAIN!

FERGAL O'Brien's seven pound-claiming jockey Connor Brace from the Vale will soon be losing his allowance if he carries on the way he has been – he's ridden six winners since the end of last month.

His latest was on March 11, when he won the opening Juvenile Hurdle on 14-1 outsider Phoenican Star for O'Brien, who trains in the Cotswolds.

Later in the afternoon Tim Vaughan's Hazm, a 10-1 chance, won the Maiden Open Flat Race under Richard Patrick who is no stranger to Wales.

Vale of Glamorgan Football League news round-up

DESPITE a few games falling foul of the weather, an entertaining Saturday was had in the VOGAFL.

Barry Athletic now just need one more win to retain their Premier Division crown, but they were made to work for the points away to St Athan, as they came from behind to grab a last-minute winner.

Coree Roberts' delightful lob put St Athan ahead but Teejay Caton notched a fine double to ensure Athletic remain on course for the title.

In Division One just the one game survived as Cadoxton Imps' promotion chase suffered a bump in the road as they were held to a thrilling 3-3 draw by Cwm Talwg.

Imps now sit three points off second-placed Tynewydd with a game in hand and a slightly better goal difference, plus the two sides clash at the end of the month in what should be a huge game for both clubs.

In Division Two, leaders AFC Rhoose B avenged last week's cup thumping to defeat Penarth Town B 4-2. The result sees Rhoose move three points ahead of St Athan B who were held 1-1 away to Vale Madrid, although Rhoose have played two games less.

Barry Vikings' game was postponed and they are now in third, four points off top with a game in hand.

The title race in Division Two looks set to go right to the wire with some interesting and exciting twists and turns to come in the next few weeks.

Finally, Barry Athletic B returned to winning ways as they survived a late Island Marine B fight-back to win the Barry Island derby 3-2.

Stableford action for golfers

DESPITE a forecast of heavy rain from midday, St Mary's Golf Club's senior section turned out in force for a popular Two Division Stableford competition.

The golfers were thankful that the promised rain held off, and everyone completed the full course of 18 holes.

Division One for handicaps up to 21 was headed by old campaigner Roy Denton with a score of 37 points, one ahead of Graham Jones. Wayne Newton completed the placings on 35 points.

Phil Banks claimed the Division Two victory with a fine 39 points. Section captain Dave Hughes secured second spot on 37 points with former paramedic Trevor Evans just one behind on 36.

Two days later, in strong blustery winds with yet more rain forecast, 15 members of the section teed off in a team Texas Scramble played over 10 holes.

Sub-par scores are to be expected in the Texas Scramble format and the five teams did not disappoint. At the end of play, two teams shared the win on a score of 26, 11 strokes under the par of 37 for the 10 holes played.

Phil Banks' continued good form helped fellow team members Bryant Thomas and Gareth Jones to bag one of the winning spots, while the smoking hot putter of Eddie Fothergill proved to be a telling factor in supporting section chairman and Norman Lloyd in claiming the other.

Honours even as Llantwit Major AFC's streak continues!

LLANTWIT Major AFC travelled to Cambrian & Clydach Vale who were lying in third position in the league table, aiming to continue their fine run which has seen them suffer only one defeat in their last eight league games.

In blustery but dry conditions, Llantwit played against the wind in the first half. Both sides were evenly matched in the opening exchanges and in the 20th minute, Llantwit created their first goalscoring opportunity when, from a free kick into their opponents' goal area, defender Sean Williams headed the ball back across the six-yard box to striker Max Morgan, whose shot was pushed away by the Cambrian keeper.

In the resultant scramble the ball was eventually cleared by a Cambrian defender. Within a minute Cambrian took the lead when a well-worked corner move resulted in a shot that Llantwit keeper Jack Lansdown partly saved, but the rebound was headed home by the Cambrian striker from a yard out.

Llantwit tried to respond but did not really create any further chances for the remainder of the half, but they were indebted to defender Kristian Evans who prevented a second Cambrian goal when he had to head the ball away off the goal line just before the half-time whistle blew.

With the wind behind them in the second half, it was a different Llantwit team who grew in confidence and started to put Cambrian under pressure.

Four minutes into the half, left wing Rob Jones had an opportunity to score from around 12 yards out, but his shot was straight at the keeper. In the 73rd minute, Llantwit were unlucky not to equalise when striker Anthony Rawlings broke through on the right hand side of the goal area and his shot from around 15 yards out brought a fine save from the Cambrian keeper.

Further Llantwit pressure finally paid dividends in the 77th minute when a corner taken by left back Connor Goldsworthy saw centre half Sean Williams outjump his marker at the far post to head home powerfully from around four yards out for a fine goal.

Three minutes later, from another corner, Sean was unlucky not to score a second when this time he produced a left footed volley from around eight yards out that just went over the crossbar. Llantwit tried to get the winner but it was not to be, and the game ended in a draw.

Llantwit will be pleased to obtain another point away from home against one of the top teams in the league. This draw has now seen Llantwit suffer just one defeat in their last nine league games and on their day Llantwit are more than capable of competing at this level of football in their first season in Division 1 of the Welsh League.

Llantwit's next League game will be away to Goytre on Saturday, March 16 with a 2.30pm kick off.

Llantwit Major: Jack Lansdown, Jamie Miller, Kristian Evans, Sean Williams, Connor Goldsworthy, Lewis Brown (Nathan Jones 49), Mike Hartley (Lee Jones 85), Jonathan Butler (c), Rob Jones, Max Morgan (Josh Jones 56), Anthony Rawlings. Substitutes not used: Kyran Gardner, Nathan Renfree.

Youth team edge high-scoring game

COWBRIDGE RFC youth made it through to the next round of the Blues Cup with a close 42-38 victory in a very high-scoring game away at Llanishen.

With a couple of boys making their youth debut the team was a new one. David Harris made his debut in the front row and Ioan Davis in the back row. Both boys had great games and will be positive additions to the squad.

Playing on Llanishen's excellent new 4G facilities, the boys started the game well, only for the Llanishen outside centre to intercept a long pass just inside his own 22.

He had enough pace to make it to the try line despite Jake Thomas's desperate attempt to catch up the 10-metre head start.

Cowbridge responded well, keeping Llanishen camped inside their own 22 for the next five minutes. From an attacking line 10 metres from the Llanishen line, Jack Dixon crashed over following a flat pass by Ioan Lewis, which Lewis converted.

Llanishen came straight back at Cowbridge and following a number of short pick up drives, went over close to the Cowbridge posts. With the wind at their backs, Cowbridge took full advantage wi,th some excellent tactical kicking.

From another attacking line out, Cowbridge went through the phases and Langton-Cryer, the impressive second row, crashed over under the posts. Lewis converted to level the scores at 14-14.

From the kick-off, Cowbridge cleared their lines only for the strong wind to carry the ball over the dead ball line, resulting in a scrum to Llanishen five metres inside Cowbridge 22.

They recovered the ball only for the clearing kick to be charged down for an opportunistic try. Cowbridge were struggling to execute their game plan and continued to make too many simple mistakes.

From a scrum on the Llanishen 10-metre line, Cowbridge put together a well-worked backs move, putting Jake Thomas clear on the left wing.

Thomas side-stepped his opposite number and had the pace to make it to the try line before the Llanishen full back could make a tackle.

With the first half coming to an end, Ben Jones, the Cowbridge open-side flanker managed to get a turnover at the breakdown.

Ioan Williams fed his backs who, with simple passing, put Jake Thomas clear for his second try in as many minutes to give Cowbridge the advantage, 28-21.

With Cowbridge expecting half-time, Llanishen produced their best team move of the half. The forwards kept possession tight with a number of pop passes, before their inside centre switched the direction of the attack and put the left winger clear for a half-time score of 28-26.

With Cowbridge now playing into the strong wind, the boys had to change their tactics and keep the ball in hand a lot more. This worked and Cowbridge had far more possession and territory than in the first half.

However, with all the possession and territory, Cowbridge could not break down a resilient Llanishen defence. Cowbridge did manage to cross the Llanishen try a line a number of times only for the referee to deem the ball held up.

With 15 minutes remaining, Cowbridge finally scored in the second half. From a five-metre attacking scrum, Evan Thomas fed Dan Stancombe who forced his way over from a few metres out.

Cowbridge were now on top and kept Llanishen camped inside their 22. From another attacking line out, Evan Thomas fed Jack Dixon who crashed over for his second try of the game.

With game entering its final stages Llanishen got themselves an attacking five-metre scrum. From the scrum, the Llanishen forwards out-muscled the Cowbridge defence to force themselves over the line.

Cowbridge responded by throwing the ball around, looking for their seventh try of the game. However, one pass too many allowed the flying Llanishen winger to intercept the ball and run the length of the field for Llanishen's sixth try of the game.

Two wins on the bounce for the Tigers

HEAVY rain put paid to many games this Sunday, and Llantwit Major RFC under-13 Tigers were fortunate to find a playable surface at the picturesque Rest Bay pitch of Porthcawl RFC for this weeks game.

This third head-to-head of the season for the teams provided Porthcawl with the chance to avenge their previous two losses, but also gave the Tigers a chance to extend their winning run following last week's victory away to Bedwas.

With only two points separating the teams when they last met in January, this fixture was expected to be another evenly-matched encounter and this proved to be the case.

With the wind at their backs in the first half, the Tigers struck quickly with a classic burst from captain and No 8, Dan Bartlett, who dotted down under the posts to provide an easy conversion for kicker Thomas George.

Porthcawl quickly replied with their own try, but failed with the conversion with the ball almost blown back behind the kicker due to the wind.

Keeping the ball in hand, back rower, and eventual man of the match, Kelyn Joseph, was next on the score sheet with a barrelling run from close range. This time the conversion was from a more difficult angle, but kicker Ethan Harding was able to curl the ball between the posts.

Porthcawl responded once again with an unconverted try before the Tigers counter punched, with a close range effort finished by Dan Bartlett who managed to power over after some great build-up play by both backs and forwards.

Supporters were treated to yet another superb conversion, this time by Thomas George who from wide on the left used the wind to draw the ball between the uprights.

Porthcawl flew out of the blocks in the second half and took the lead with two converted tries, taking advantage of some weak Tigers defence. With the conditions now in their favour, the home team seemed to be on course to avenge their previous defeats.

The Tigers, however, had other plans. From their own half, and against all sound judgement, outside half Harvey Jones in his first game in the position, launched outside centre Fred O'Carroll, who was able to outstrip the home defence with a blistering run and go under the posts to take back the lead.

Even in front of goal the conversion was not a certainty as the wind had not abated one bit, but Thomas George took the responsibility and nailed this one as well to complete an incredible 100 per cent kicking performance by the goalkickers.

With five minutes remaining, the Tigers smartly reverted to playing keep-ball to run out the clock close to the Porthcawl line.

But one mistake provided the home team with the chance to clear their lines with a kick that was expertly dealt with by full back Tom Sheldon who positioned himself perfectly to deal with the threat.

The final whistle brought relief to both players and supporters, not only in holding out for the victory but it also coincided with a burst of heavy hail which sent everyone scattering for shelter.

A great game and result for the Tigers, especially as they experimented with players in new positions and gave a debut to second rower Cameron Hegney who showed great promise and capped off a sterling performance with a storming second half run.

Commiserations to Porthcawl on this occasion, but Llantwit Major Tigers look forward to continuing the close rivalry next season.

Squad: Kian Barnett, Dan Bartlett (c), Robert Dixon, Thomas George, Ethan Harding, Cameron Hegney, Jakub Jeziorski, Harvey Jones, Tom Jones, Kelyn Joseph, Dexter Milburn, Fred O'Carroll, Ben Raymond, Tom Sheldon and Cameron Wheadon.

SIX NATIONS 2019

SCOTLAND 11 WALES 18

The Grand Slam is still on but Gatland's Welsh comeback kings get a taste of their own medicine!

Man of the match Hadleigh Parkes kicks ahead for Wales.
Match report by Philip Irwin.
All photographs by the Huw Evans Agency.

Ross Moriarty made several powerful charges in the first half, but after the break it was Wales' defence that was tested.

AFTER this baffling match in Murrayfield, Wales remain on course to go for the Grand Slam next Saturday in the Principality Stadium against Ireland, but it was not a comfortable watch.

In the opening Six Nations game, Wales started slowly against France, but stormed back in the second half to win – and then they did the same against England, so after an excellent first 40 minutes, when the Welsh side got on top and varied their play intelligently, they went into the break in complete control against a Scotland side that was ravaged by injuries.

However, with the benefit of hindsight, there was a unlikely echo of the English encounter just before half time.

England, remember, were leading 10–3 when Jonny May chased down Liam Williams and forced him into touch five metres out. It was the final play of the first half, and an England score could have put the games out of Wales' reach, but great defence held the English line-out drive, and Wales were able to regroup during the break.

Yesterday, two minutes before half time, and with Wales leading 15–6, Gareth Anscombe sent a superb penalty from a narrow angle spiralling perfectly to find touch just five metres out. A try could have taken the score to 20–6, or even 22–6, but Scotland held the line-out drive.

They did, however, concede a penalty, but Anscombe hit the post. Even then, Hadleigh Parkes claimed the rebound and Wales recycled the ball and sent it out to the in-form Josh Adams, who fancied his chances against substitute Adam Hastings, but the Scot made a great tackle.

Now, it was Scotland's turn to regroup during the interval and they made a startling resurgence.

They had started the match with two of their first-choice back three (Stuart Hogg and Sean Maitland) out injured.

Before 30 minutes had passed, two more (Tommy Seymour and Blair Kinghorn) had departed and a fifth attacking threat, the twinkle-toed Darcy Graham, lasted only until the 64th minute before needing repairs.

Wales coach Warren Gatland hinted that, perhaps, a touch of complacency set in among the Welsh side during the break, while captain Alun Wyn Jones simply said that Wales could not get hold of the ball in the second half.

Certainly, the Scots produced a supercharged but mistake-ridden second half where they let scoring chances slip on several occasions.

However, they managed to retain possession after many of their mistakes, with fumbles going backwards and misplaced passes being tidied up by a navy blue jersey rather than a red.

On top of that, the penalty count moved heavily against Wales, so much so that, with 10 minutes remaining, referee Pascal Gauzere gave Alun Wyn Jones the "next one is in the bin" talk.

After the game, Scotland coach Gregor Townsend made it clear that he felt that talk should have been made 10 to 15 minutes earlier.

Wales paid a price for Scotland's resurgence too, as Liam Williams, who had been having an outstanding game, went off injured. One Aussie Rules-style catch, taking the ball high above his head, will live long in the memory. It looked like a damaged collar bone but, at the time of writing, is being described as a 'stinger' which gives him hope of playing next Saturday.

His injury was linked to the one occasion that Wales' rush defence was out-flanked. They say that a long pass can do this, and in this case that pass fell into the hands of Allan Dell. The Scottish prop looked a touch nonplussed at first, looking for a quicker man to pass to, but realising that there was no one near, he showed a clean pair of heels to Alun Wyn Jones and had worked up a real head of steam when Liam Williams was forced to throw himself into the path of the truck.

On the injury front, Wales seem to have survived this game, although Hadleigh Parkes and Adam Beard looked as if they had gone 15 rounds with Anthony Joshua.

It had all seemed so smooth in the first half. Scotland did score first after 10 minutes with a Finn Russell penalty after Josh Navidi was ruled offside, but within five minutes Wales were ahead.

Quick hands out right meant Wales made ground and then, when the ball was moved left, centre Jonathan Davies drew his man and passed to Josh Adams. The left wing was short of room to work with, but skinned the Scots full back, Kinghorn, and crossed in the corner before running round to touch down behind the posts. It was a really sharp finish, although the re-runs suggested that the pass to him was slightly forward. Anscombe converted.

Scotland came back and Darcy Graham, who has more than a touch of Shane Williams about him, beat defenders with barely any room. One suspects he wears bright yellow boots to highlight his dazzling footwork!

The attack broke down but Scotland were awarded a penalty that reduced the margin to just one point.

However, four minutes later Anscombe restored Wales' lead, splitting the posts from 42 metres.

On the 25-minute mark, Wales made it 15–6. They put George North at the front of the line out, and the wing made ground, before a series of pick and goes sucked in the defence. When the ball was moved wide, centre Jonathan Davies was spoiled for choice. He could have put Adams in for a second, but a gap opened up and he scored himself. It was as clinical a move as Wales have put together all year.

It carried on going Wales' way. By now, Seymour and Kinghorn had left the field, and Ross Moriarty was enjoying himself, catching the Scottish restarts and crashing through tackles. The Murrayfield crowd was quiet.

There was the aforementioned chance to increase the lead, but all was fine and dandy as Wales left the field for the half time team talk.

It all changed in the second half, with Scotland attacking furiously. Hamish Watson, returning from injury and short of match fitness, was like a man possessed when he came on, bouncing off would-be tacklers and making yards every time he had the ball.

He epitomised the Scottish fightback, burning with frustration and anger at the way things had gone in the first half.

Liam Williams picked up his injury 10 minutes into the half, and Dan Biggar replaced him,

The Scots had a lucky break when Hadleigh Parkes was harshly penalised for a high tackle. Finn Russell kicked for the corner after that penalty, and Wales held the line-out drive, but had to react quickly when Grant Gilchrist forced his way over – turning the second row onto his back and stopping him grounding the ball.

Wales were rattled. Biggar had a chance to put in a relieving penalty kick, but slipped and his miscue made just 10 yards. To make matters worse, Wales were failing to win their own line-outs, so the pressure came back on them.

Soon after, George North fell foul of M. Gauzere, being penalised for a choke tackle, even though he had his hand firmly on the ball as he contested possession with Ali Price.

This time, the Scots worked a sharp backs move, with Finn Russell giving an inside pass to Byron McGuigan, who put Darcy Graham clear for his first international try. Russell's pass appeared to be forward, but Wales could hardly complain after a similar call in the first half.

The try went unconverted, but it was now 15–11. At a ruck, Gareth Davies shouted at the referee, demanding a penalty. There's too much of this these days, and he was rewarded by seeing the penalty go against Wales!

There was a chance for Wales to restore their lead when Adams kicked ahead after a loose Scottish pass. Jonathan Davies continued the attack, and a score seemed likely, but Wales' first half coolness had gone missing and the chance went begging.

ABOVE:
Blair Kinghorn can only watch as Josh Adams crosses for Wales' first try.

The next 12 minutes were agony for Welsh spectators. Scotland were camped in the 22, and a series of penalties were kicked into the corner to keep Wales on the rack.They did, however, keep all 15 on the pitch and this made a difference. Young Aaron Wainwright came on with fresh legs and Wales demolished a planned Scottish line out drive, pushing them back 10 metres and earning a much-needed penalty,

Fortunately for Wales, Scotland continued to make errors. One 15-phase attack ended with the Scots 30 yards further away from the Welsh line than when they started.

Before the match was over, Wales had one more lucky break. Price chased a kick ahead and, failing to notice that the bounce had beaten Gareth Anscombe, tackled him regardless. It meant that Wales had a relieving penalty kick and, from the next phase of play, they had a kickable penalty, which Anscombe slotted to make it 18-11.

The match finished soon after, and the camera turned to Warren Gatland in the stands.

The Welsh head coach seemed a little underwhelmed by the victory!
